New Ethiopia Peace Effort May Be Made

League Council Given Report On Africa Dispute

Canadian Press Reports
Strong Feeling in Geneva Britain and France Ought to Make Another Effort For Peace Between Italy and Ethiopia

Rome Cabinet To Meet Saturday

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Geneva, Sept. 24.—The committee of five attempting to compromise the dispute between Italy and Ethiopia, after a two-hour session this morning, unanimously adopted its report to the Council of the League.

The committee's work of conciliation has failed. All that remains for it is to submit the record of its efforts, its peace plan with appendices containing the Italian and Ethiopian replies.
It is now for the Council to determine whether a new effort at conciliation shall be made or not. Technically one of three courses lies before the Council:
1. Further to attempt conciliation by a new, possibly smaller committee.
2. The Council may decide to make its own report under article XV of the covenant, stating the facts of the dispute, with recommendations deemed just and proper.
3. It may defer the whole question to the Assembly, which would then appoint its own committee to prepare a report and recommendations. This procedure was followed in the Chaco and Manchurian disputes.
The Council will probably meet Thursday.
ANOTHER EFFORT
Despite the failure of the conciliation committee there is a strong feeling Great Britain and France act.

Mr. Justice F. G. T. Lucas of Supreme Court Dies in Vancouver

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 24.—Mr. Justice F. G. T. Lucas, fifty-six, of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, died today in the Vancouver General Hospital. He failed to rally after an operation undergone last week.

Formerly a member of the firm of Lucas & Lucas, one of the oldest and most prominent legal firms in Vancouver, Mr. Lucas was appointed to the Supreme Court bench December 3, 1934, to succeed Mr. Justice W. A. Macdonald, who retired.

Mr. Lucas was born at Alivision, Ont., and was educated at Calgary, where his father, Alex. Lucas, was mayor, being one of those who obtained the charter of the city in 1894. The family had moved to Calgary in 1886. Mr. Lucas Sr. was associated there with the establishment of the Calgary Herald.

Doctors State Views On Bill

College of Physicians and Surgeons Would Make Many Changes in Health Insurance Measure; Pearson Demonstrates How Small Schemes Have Been Successful

"Any suggestion that a plan of state health insurance will not work out in British Columbia is the silliest sort of statement that I've heard from intelligent men in a country like we have. It makes me gasp when I think of the schemes that are now operating, quite successfully, in many of our company towns and small localities," declared Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, before the hearings committee on the draft insurance bill at the Parliament Buildings this morning.

The statement was made as Mr. Pearson and Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, staged a counter-attack to the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons which had gone on record as unflinchingly opposed to the draft bill in its present form. Dr. Weir challenged the doctors to deny that 60 or 75 per cent of them

Golden Plum "Twin" and Giant Tomato Are Reported in Victoria To-day

Old Moore's prediction of strange happenings in the plant world this year, of freaks and giants among vegetables, flowers and fruit, is becoming truer every day.
As reports from farms and gardens come into the news room of The Victoria Times, the seer's forecast, part of which was printed in an issue of this paper at the beginning of the year, is being proved by an imposing line of "Siamese twins" and "giants." To-day Mrs. Tom Feden of 1034

King Renews His Pledge Against Railway Merger

Liberal Leader Says Bennett's Latest Declaration Releases Conservative Party From Promise to Keep C.N.R. Separate From C.P.R.

Canadian Press
Prince Albert, Sask., Sept. 24.—The road to amalgamation of Canadian railways has been made easier by Prime Minister Bennett's new policy, but the Liberal Party is pledged to the maintenance of the integrity of the Canadian National Railways, Liberal Leader Mackenzie King declared here yesterday evening when he addressed an audience of voters in the constituency in which he is a candidate.
"In 1930, Mr. Bennett pledged himself to 'competition over amalgamation never,'" said Mr. King. "He doesn't make that pledge today. Mr. Bennett has released the Conservative Party from the thing that has bound it for the past five years."
The Prime Minister had been bound not to amalgamate the railways and the Conservative Party was so bound. Now, Mr. Bennett said he would have the Economic Council study the railway problem and if it recommended amalgamation, submit the issue to the people. His hands had been tied before and they were still tied only in a lesser degree. But the Conservative Party's hands were not tied at all because Mr. Bennett had never submitted his new policy to his party.

IF BENNETT DROPS OUT
Should Mr. Bennett drop out of public life there was nothing to bind the Conservative Party on the railway question.

"I should say business is 25 per cent better than it was a year ago," said Mr. Morrow, who was on the Coast about twelve months ago.

After Meeting in Vancouver When He Answered Numerous Interrupters, Premier Goes to Kamloops For Meeting

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 24.—A Canadian jurist familiar with provincial civil and criminal laws, speaking both French and English, will shortly be appointed public prosecutor to enforce regulations arising from the price spreads report, Prime Minister Bennett said in closing his Pacific Coast campaign in Vancouver yesterday evening.

To-day he was en route to Kamloops, where he will make the first break of his eastward trip to speak to-night.

The Prime Minister started his address yesterday evening amid interruptions from the galleries which made his voice almost inaudible, but within an hour he had gained complete silence.

"These are the people," he said, "who clamor for free speech. Is it any wonder there is a Section 98 in the Criminal Code?"

The cries of the objectors during the first half-hour were met by cheers from Mr. Bennett's supporters. At the outset of the meeting, when crowds massed in the rush galleries set up a clamor, Mr. Bennett's first remarks were an appeal to the "decent citizens of Vancouver" to see that order was maintained.
"What a cowardly lot," he exclaimed, as he whistled set up a great clamor.

CHARGE OVER AIRPLANE ROW

Saanich Man Said to Have Pulled at Pilot When Companion Refused Passage

A Saanich man who is alleged to have become obstreperous when his companion was refused passage on the Canadian Airways plane to Vancouver yesterday afternoon, will appear in the Esquimalt Police Court this week on a charge of assaulting Pilot Billy Wells, according to the Esquimalt police.

The charge, police said, arises out of an incident on the Canadian Airways float at Esquimalt yesterday when a man who is said to have been drinking, was refused passage on the plane.

Pilot stated the Saanich man, a companion of the man who was refused transportation, took up the argument and is alleged to have attempted to pull Pilot Wells from one of the plane's pontoons.

R. Carter Guest, inspector of civil aviation, was on the float and summoned Esquimalt police when the trouble arose. He has left the case in the hands of the police.

Mr. Guest explained that every precaution was being taken to safeguard air passengers in Canada and that pilots would exercise their prerogative in refusing passage to any who, in their opinion, should not be transported. The killing of a baseball player in an airplane over Toronto recently is said to be responsible for a more careful scrutiny of passengers going on airplanes now.

BAER GETS HIS GLOVES

Wins Argument For Special Mitts at Weighing-in For To-night's Bout

New York, Sept. 24.—Making concessions to avoid any prolonged hitch in preparations for tonight's million-dollar heavyweight battle, the managers of Joe Louis agreed to the use of specially-made gloves after a bitter argument marked by a dramatic threat by Max Baer to call off the fight.

Baer scored two important points during a stormy session in the downtown offices of the State Athletic Commission which followed the weighing-in.

John Roxborough and Julian Black, the co-managers of Louis, not only agreed to adopt the special type of glove desired by Baer, but conceded the use of additional bandages and tape on the hands, thus in effect yielding to Max's desire for all possible protection of his previously damaged fists.

The special gloves to be used to-night feature a protective insert of leather for each thumb. They are also designed with the idea of preventing the user from employing "thumbing" tactics. They have never been used before in New York.

At the weighing-in Baer scaled 210½ pounds and Louis 199½.

Alex Wait Attended Oak Bay Schools; Mother and Sisters Receive News

Alex Wait, eighteen-year-old Victoria boy who was lost at sea in the Hurry On disaster off the Atlantic Coast yesterday evening, was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wait of 832 Newport Avenue, Oak Bay. He left here in July, 1934, and joined the steamer at Halifax, remaining with her more than a year, during which time she was wrecked off Halifax last January.

Young Wait, who was born at Seppelt, Saskatchewan eighteen years ago last May, attended the Monterey Avenue School and Oak Bay High School. He was a popular boy with his schoolmates and was well known on the field of athletics, starting particularly in sprinting and running. He also played rugby. It was when he left high school a year ago last June that he went across Canada to join the Hurry On.

FATHER RETURNING
His mother and three sisters, Gertrude, Helene and Thelma, at the family home on Newport Avenue, received the sad news this morning. Mrs. Wait was prostrated with grief. Her husband, who for a couple of years has been operating his ranch in North Dakota, is expected to reach Victoria in a few days. He was away when Alex Jr. left for the Atlantic seaboard last year.

WILD STORM IS DESCRIBED

Survivor of Hurry on Disaster Tells of Night of Horror

Canadian Press
Judique, N.S., Sept. 24.—Still chilled by horror, a youthful Nova Scotia seaman told today how man after man of his mates on the Halifax motor vessel Hurry On had died as they fought their way toward land in the teeth of a raging storm that had sunk their ship off this village.

Seaman G. Carmichael of St. Ann, N.S., told the story: Five of his companions had perished in the welter of wind and sea that sent the Hurry On to the bottom. Six more had been washed ashore, near death after battling for life all night.

"It was terrible," the twenty-one-year-old seaman exclaimed as he and his living companions made ready to be taken to a hospital to be treated for exposure. "When the storm struck us the cargo shifted to starboard and we had to leave the vessel at 6:30 in the evening."

Vessel Which Was Tied Up in Harbor Many Months Turns Over During Gale Off Cape Breton Coast—Was Among Those Who Perished

Unconscious Men Drift Ashore

Canadian Press
Judique, N.S., Sept. 24.—A handful of dead and living seamen were washed ashore on the west coast of Cape Breton near here today, with news that five men of the Halifax Ma. Hurry On had died in a storm that smashed down on their little ship twelve hours before. Alex Wait of Victoria, B.C., was among those lost.

Six survivors and a dead man drifted to land in a battered and careless lifeboat after a night of terror that saw their five companions picked off by death, one by one.

A seventh living member of the crew was cast ashore by the rollers unconscious and half dead. He had been drifting about for hours.

This afternoon, several hours after making land, all seven were still weak from the exposure they suffered after their ship had been abandoned off Henry Island, twenty-three miles from here. They were to be taken to a hospital.

Pile of the six living in the boat were unconscious when they made land, and only one could crawl to a fisherman's home to bring help. Exhaustion and exposure had left them helpless.

Hours before they landed exposure had snatched away Capt. A. H. Gardner, a fifty-four-year-old Yorkshireman. Three others had died the same way on the long voyage in the water-filled lifeboat. The fifth had been lost in one of the three times the lifeboat capsized.

CARGO SHIFTED

The dozen were bound for Montreal from Halifax on the Hurry On when the storm swept down early yesterday evening. As the vessel heeled before the northeaster, her cargo of corn shifted, forcing her down on one side. Oil poured on the water failed to calm it, and finally the men had to take to the boat at 6:30 o'clock.

They had no motor under the lifeboat than it overturned and the lifeboat was lost.

REPLY TO QUESTIONS

"Two or three men should not be permitted to destroy a meeting. In Regina I addressed seven or eight thousand people, and they listened without disorder, asking their questions at the proper time. I will answer questions here if I am asked one at a time."

"I am surprised the decent citizens of Vancouver permit such an exhibition — that the police do not throw these hoodlums out. I wonder how they would be treated if this were Russia?"

Mr. Bennett turned to the subject matter of his address. The crowd gradually quieted so that those in the lower galleries and on the floor of the rink could hear what was being said.

TRADE DISCUSSION

The Prime Minister reviewed the trade policies of his government and again took issue with Liberal Leader Mackenzie King's declaration that the Japanese trade difficulties and declared that to accede to tariff concessions demanded by that country would be to place Canadian people working for wages compared to which those in relief camps were well off.

ECONOMIC COUNCIL

Dealing with other subjects, Mr. Bennett said provision had been made for the appointment of an Economic Council "free from tariff or suspicion of party bias, and the government had a definite policy for the improvement of radio and civil aviation. "We hope," he said, "to bring British Columbia nearer the rest of Canada by air."

FUNDS FOR B.C.

Telling of the federal government's efforts to maintain credit and keep the provinces from default, Mr. Bennett told of the advances to British Columbia, a total of $35,000,000 "to enable the government at Victoria to carry on business." The government was making advances to British Columbia "although this is a Liberal government that has been criticizing and decrying us all over the country. We did that because we put country before party."

RELIEF CAMPS

Relief camps operated in Canada for single unemployed transients had been such a success and benefit that they had won the admiration of the countries abroad, he said.

Touching upon activities of Communists in Canada, Mr. Bennett said that had it not been for agitators who went among the young men in relief camps there would have been no difficulties.

"There are those who say Section 98 should be repealed," he said. "When I heard to-night the clamors of those who would have denied free speech in this hall, I wondered why anybody should say Section 98 should be repealed."

DOCTORS STATE
VIEWS ON BILL

would not like an assured income, regular vacations and retirement on good superannuation.

Gordon Wismer of Vancouver presented the brief for the medical men, and stated at the outset that they were 100 per cent against the proposed scheme, although it might be quite true, as Dr. Weir had stated, that 75 per cent of them favored the principle of health insurance.

DOCTORS' VIEWS

The doctors made ten main recommendations, including:

- (1) Introduction of the act be postponed until the national commission investigates.
- (2) That the income level be fixed at $125 a month instead of $200; that compulsory insurance against hospitalization be provided for wage-earners and dependents with incomes between $125 and $200 a month, and that voluntary insurance against hospitalization be allowed those getting over $200.
- (3) That payment for medical services be made on a basis of a schedule of fees to be arranged between the government and the medical profession, and that where local conditions make differences advisable.
- (4) That cash benefits should not be introduced in the same scheme as medical benefits.
- (5) That medical benefits be divided into mandatory and optional, with the former to be initiated by the government and the latter by the medical profession.
- (6) That the funds for medical and cash benefits be kept separate so that one could not be used to pay for the other.
- (7) That all reference to payments for indigents at half rates be eliminated, and one rate apply to all those insured.
- (8) That the government assume the responsibility of providing sufficient money to establish a reserve fund to protect against cutting down on remuneration to medical men and women when the need arises.

The brief was an exhaustive one and went into the bill from many angles.

WHO CAN PAY

On the question as to who should come under the insurance measure, it was argued that persons earning $200 a month with or without dependents needed no assistance. Those getting $150 are able, with thrift, to take care of themselves and dependents, but insurance against hospitalization is desirable.

Under the present set-up, those in the higher income bracket around $200 a month would have to bear the major share of the burden. With this class insured the doctors would lose out because those in the $200 group were the best paying patients they have.

FINANCIAL SET-UP

The financial arrangement, by which the government contribution was limited, was unsound, because the only way the scheme could be rehabilitated if it got into difficulties was by a reduction in benefits or in remuneration to those giving medical services.

"There surely can be no justification for those rendering service being involved in the uncertainties of the scheme or being forced to assume the maintenance of its financial burden," Mr. Wismer declared.

In connection with a reference in the bill to payment for services to indigents at half rates, Mr. Wismer asked this be deleted, saying:

CHARITY CASES

"The medical profession has looked after the poor for so long for nothing, or very little, that the public and governments have come to accept their services as a matter of course, and with no appreciation of the knowledge of the vast amount of work that is done without reward, or hope of reward. It has been conservatively estimated that there is $1,000,000 worth of charity work done by the doctors of Vancouver annually. We carry this burden of public health, which is not our burden, for the community and the fact we have done so is sometimes used against us. We do not feel it would be fair now to leave us, by law, with half the unjust burden we have carried. This is a curious example of the public attitude toward the medical profession."

Another aspect of the case was that when health insurance went into effect a large amount of medical work, which had not been sought because of financial reasons during the depression, would have to be done. Just as in other businesses a great "back log" of orders had been built up. In addition, when cost was not involved, the demand for medical attention would be increased. For this reason the sums allotted under the scheme for medical care would be hardly sufficient to meet it.

As high as 50 per cent increase in the number of calls to be made by doctors might be anticipated.

In the conclusion of the brief, it was stated that "there is not a shadow of doubt that any scheme which is not favorably received by the medical profession cannot be a success."

GOVERNMENT REPLY

Dr. Weir, replying first, disposed of the idea that delay until a national commission investigated insurance would help matters by pointing out that it would take three to five years to learn as much as was already available about the B.C. situation from studies initiated here.

Mr. Pearson said it looked as if the doctors while claiming to favor the principle of health insurance would be just as pleased if no plan ever came into effect. The draft bill, he pointed out, was purely a basis for discussion.

"It was quite true the bill would need revising in several instances, but to suggest it be postponed because some doctors in Eastern Canada were afraid it would spread there was a foolish argument."

In general he thought the doctors would benefit from the plan, although there might be some who valued their services so highly that they would be impossible to pay them.

"The chief fear of the medical men seems to be that their earnings will be threatened. This plan protects them to a certain extent as well as it protects a section of the people against the costs of sickness. Those who can afford to pay are left as 'fair game' for the doctors," he said.

"Some of my socialist ideas would give me the right to socialize the whole thing, but I really don't think we're ready for that yet. I'm sure the doctors don't want us to go that far," he declared.

Charles Chivers appeared on behalf of the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council and opposed the principle of restricting health insurance to those earning $200 a month and less. The plan should be all inclusive, he said. Revenue to pay for the scheme should come from everybody and not restricted to those getting benefits. All persons within the scope of the measure should have the right to select their own methods of healing and they urged that hospitalization periods be extended on recommendation of the attending practitioners.

Reeve Tisdall of North Cowichan estimated the plan would cost his municipality $30,000 a year, which it could not possibly raise from land taxation. He was fully in favor of health insurance but saw no reason for making a distinction in the case of various areas. Under the scheme this placed an undue burden on rural landowners, he claimed.

CHIROPODISTS SEEK RIGHTS

Chiropodists of the province, as a protest against the proposed medical act, Dr. J. J. Gorosh, who appeared with Dr. A. L. Hilton. They urged, however, that patients have freedom of choice as between chiropodists and medical men when seeking treatment of cases falling naturally in the field of the chiropodists, and asked that a scale of fees for work done by chiropodists under the act be then fixed. The profession would undertake, in return to provide adequate foot service.

EFFECT ON PRODUCTION COSTS

Professor H. F. Angus of the University of British Columbia, sought to dissipate the theory that health insurance would impose such a burden on industry that it could not compete with industries elsewhere.

WHEAT BOARD

Wheat now in store and owned by producers, or wheat moving in carlots to terminal markets at Fort Williams, Vancouver, can also be delivered to the board at these minimum prices. But in the case of carlot shipments, the statement said, the grower must declare within ten days of the wheat being unloaded whether the grain is for delivery to the board.

Every producer who delivers his wheat to the board is entitled to a "producer's certificate." This certificate will entitle the grower to participate in any surplus that may arise from the operations of the board.

These participation certificates are in the hands of all licensed handlers of farmers' wheat and should be obtained by the grower at the time of making delivery of wheat to the board. The board's price list for all grades also is in possession of all licensed grain handlers, and the producer has access to this list.

At the time of turning over his wheat to the board, whether at a country elevator, a terminal elevator, flour mill or through other licensed dealers, the producer should get a "cash ticket" for the full amount of the board's price for the grade or grades of wheat.

In addition, the producer should be furnished with a producer's certificate stating the quantity and grade of the wheat so delivered to the board. This should be retained by the grower as proof he is entitled to share in any surplus which may arise from the board's operations. These certificates are not transferable.

The board, said the statement, is prepared to relieve growers of certain storage charges in cases where a producer has stored wheat intended for delivery to the board and such wheat is now being assessed storage.

With regard to wheat held by producers in terminal elevators which they deliver to the board, storage charges accrued from September 1 to September 25 will be paid by the board.

Soon after it capitalized again, and this time first mate Alex MacKenzie of North Sydney, N.S., failed to climb back aboard.

Through the long night, then, the shivering seamen watched as one after another, Alex Wait of Victoria, B.C.; Captain Gardner, third engineer; J. F. Macaulay, of River Denys, N.S., and seaman Fraser MacLean, of Pictou Island, N.S., died of exposure. And as fast as they died their bodies were washed overboard as giant seas poured across the boat.

Only MacLean's body was kept and that was because his weakened mates were within a bare hour's drift of land when he died. An inquest over the body will be held here.

COST ASHORE

Alive in the boat when it was cast up were cook L. Cockspardo, thirty-five, Halifax with seaman G. Carmichael, twenty-one, St. Anne, N.S.; H. Baker, twenty-seven, Newfoundland, and Gilbert Boyd, eighteen, Truro, Carmichael was the only one conscious, and it was he who crept for help to the home of Douglas McDonald, thirty-three, of Halifax, was washed up alone on the beach. Neither he nor the others could talk enough to tell much of the tragedy.

There was no hope for the others. Search all along the beach failed to reveal any trace of them.

The ship was owned by the Unus Shipping Company of Halifax, headed by Captain J. T. Cruickshank.

WOMEN'S VIEW

The Soroptimists' Club, through a brief presented by Mrs. W. A. Adkins, outlined the principle of the health insurance bill, but proposed that it be extended to cover all wage-earners instead of being limited to those receiving $200 a month or less; they also asked that the benefits be specifically guaranteed in the act and urged that a woman be expressly given membership on the administrative commission.

Similar arguments were advanced by the Canadian Daughters' League Assembly No. 5, who believed the plan would have a tremendous effect upon the improvement of the womanhood of the country. They recommended that beneficiaries under the scheme be permitted to choose the type of treatment they wished, either from medical men, chiropodists, osteopaths or other forms of drugless healers. Mrs. A. C. Ross submitted this brief.

Mrs. A. C. Coffough, for the C.C.F. Women's Auxiliary, appeared the district secretary on employers and employees to pay for insurance, declaring the funds should come out of general income tax. She also favored extending the benefits to all classes of medical and drugless treatment. Favoring the principle, she argued that the draft bill needed several changes before being brought into force.

Mrs. C. C. Spofford, a member of the former state health commission, voiced an unofficial view that the Local Council of Women, representing forty-four organizations, would support a well-worked out plan of health insurance.

SHIP KNOWN HERE

The Hurry On was well known at this port, having been in the harbor for several months two years ago. She was owned at that time by a British Columbia syndicate and was purchased early in the spring of last year by the Unus Shipping Company of Halifax.

The vessel was built at Bloisburg, Germany, in 1923 and was registered at 698 gross tons. She was brought out to British Columbia in 1928 and operated in the liquor running trade between Vancouver and Ensenada until 1930.

He was president of the Association of British Columbia in 1923 and 1924. He was a member of the Vancouver board of trade council several years, being chairman of the board's legal bureau and until his appointment to the bench, head of the transportation and customs bureau.

He was a charter member of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and a past president of the Vancouver Automobile Club.

He served as crown prosecutor at two assizes in Vancouver and was appointed a K.C. in 1929.

The widow and two daughters survive him.

In a letter to his mother, received in Victoria this morning, Alex told of the plans to visit Montreal from Halifax. It was on this voyage of the Hurry On that the tragedy happened. He stated in this letter that after the Montreal visit the ship would go to Belgium with cargo. He home to see the members of his family. He had hoped, he said, in the letter received after his death, to attend technical school and take a course in engineering.

A letter received last week told of a trip which the Hurry On had started from Montreal to Belgium about three weeks ago. When 300 miles off the coast the ship developed engine trouble and she was forced to return to port. Alex Wait told his mother in this letter.

Last January 20 Alex Wait was aboard the Hurry On when she was wrecked, ashore, during a gale, on the coast of the New Brunswick coast. Capt. J. W. Carter said at that time he and his men were lucky to have escaped with their lives. For several days the Hurry On lay hard and fast aground with the members of her crew aboard. She was bound by the ice.

SHIP KNOWN HERE

The Hurry On was well known at this port, having been in the harbor for several months two years ago. She was owned at that time by a British Columbia syndicate and was purchased early in the spring of last year by the Unus Shipping Company of Halifax.

The vessel was built at Bloisburg, Germany, in 1923 and was registered at 698 gross tons. She was brought out to British Columbia in 1928 and operated in the liquor running trade between Vancouver and Ensenada until 1930.

He was president of the Association of British Columbia in 1923 and 1924. He was a member of the Vancouver board of trade council several years, being chairman of the board's legal bureau and until his appointment to the bench, head of the transportation and customs bureau.

He was a charter member of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club and a past president of the Vancouver Automobile Club.

He served as crown prosecutor at two assizes in Vancouver and was appointed a K.C. in 1929.

WHEAT BOARD RECEIVES GRAIN

Wheat now in store and owned by producers, or wheat moving in carlots to terminal markets at Fort Williams, Vancouver, can also be delivered to the board at these minimum prices. But in the case of carlot shipments, the statement said, the grower must declare within ten days of the wheat being unloaded whether the grain is for delivery to the board.

Every producer who delivers his wheat to the board is entitled to a "producer's certificate." This certificate will entitle the grower to participate in any surplus that may arise from the operations of the board.

These participation certificates are in the hands of all licensed handlers of farmers' wheat and should be obtained by the grower at the time of making delivery of wheat to the board. The board's price list for all grades also is in possession of all licensed grain handlers, and the producer has access to this list.

At the time of turning over his wheat to the board, whether at a country elevator, a terminal elevator, flour mill or through other licensed dealers, the producer should get a "cash ticket" for the full amount of the board's price for the grade or grades of wheat.

In addition, the producer should be furnished with a producer's certificate stating the quantity and grade of the wheat so delivered to the board. This should be retained by the grower as proof he is entitled to share in any surplus which may arise from the board's operations. These certificates are not transferable.

The board, said the statement, is prepared to relieve growers of certain storage charges in cases where a producer has stored wheat intended for delivery to the board and such wheat is now being assessed storage.

With regard to wheat held by producers in terminal elevators which they deliver to the board, storage charges accrued from September 1 to September 25 will be paid by the board.

Soon after it capitalized again, and this time first mate Alex MacKenzie of North Sydney, N.S., failed to climb back aboard.

Through the long night, then, the shivering seamen watched as one after another, Alex Wait of Victoria, B.C.; Captain Gardner, third engineer; J. F. Macaulay, of River Denys, N.S., and seaman Fraser MacLean, of Pictou Island, N.S., died of exposure. And as fast as they died their bodies were washed overboard as giant seas poured across the boat.

Only MacLean's body was kept and that was because his weakened mates were within a bare hour's drift of land when he died. An inquest over the body will be held here.

COST ASHORE

Alive in the boat when it was cast up were cook L. Cockspardo, thirty-five, Halifax with seaman G. Carmichael, twenty-one, St. Anne, N.S.; H. Baker, twenty-seven, Newfoundland, and Gilbert Boyd, eighteen, Truro, Carmichael was the only one conscious, and it was he who crept for help to the home of Douglas McDonald, thirty-three, of Halifax, was washed up alone on the beach. Neither he nor the others could talk enough to tell much of the tragedy.

There was no hope for the others. Search all along the beach failed to reveal any trace of them.

The ship was owned by the Unus Shipping Company of Halifax, headed by Captain J. T. Cruickshank.

WOMEN'S VIEW

The Soroptimists' Club, through a brief presented by Mrs. W. A. Adkins, outlined the principle of the health insurance bill, but proposed that it be extended to cover all wage-earners instead of being limited to those receiving $200 a month or less; they also asked that the benefits be specifically guaranteed in the act and urged that a woman be expressly given membership on the administrative commission.

Similar arguments were advanced by the Canadian Daughters' League Assembly No. 5, who believed the plan would have a tremendous effect upon the improvement of the womanhood of the country. They recommended that beneficiaries under the scheme be permitted to choose the type of treatment they wished, either from medical men, chiropodists, osteopaths or other forms of drugless healers. Mrs. A. C. Ross submitted this brief.

Mrs. A. C. Coffough, for the C.C.F. Women's Auxiliary, appeared the district secretary on employers and employees to pay for insurance, declaring the funds should come out of general income tax. She also favored extending the benefits to all classes of medical and drugless treatment. Favoring the principle, she argued that the draft bill needed several changes before being brought into force.

Mrs. C. C. Spofford, a member of the former state health commission, voiced an unofficial view that the Local Council of Women, representing forty-four organizations, would support a well-worked out plan of health insurance.

The Social Crediters have put A. R. Bedard of McLeod, Alta., in the fight at Prince Albert, Sask., which Mr. King has represented for many years. F. T. Graves, a farmer, is carrying the Conservative banner, and Tom Johnson of Govan, Sask., will run for the C. C. F.

At the Liberal meeting in George Jay School to-morrow evening W. H. Kinsman will act as chairman and the speakers will be M. B. Jackson, K.C., A. B. McNeill and C. J. McDowell, the candidate.

SUPERANNUATION PAYMENT MADE

Payment of $81.33 to the provincial government as interest claimed by the provincial superannuation commission on the municipal debt for back accounts was authorized by the Esquimalt Council at its session yesterday evening.

A move on the part of Councillors T. Henry Hodgson and Frederick G. Eaton to have the matter tabled for two weeks was defeated. The proposal was put forward with the idea that the council might "wait" the results of Oak Bay's refusal to pay the assessment.

It was suggested that the council was in duty bound to fulfil its obligation in accordance with the terms of the Superannuation Act of the last session of the legislature.

MORE STUDENTS ATTEND COLLEGE

An enrolment of 210 students, a slight increase over last year, was reported yesterday following the opening of Victoria College. Opening exercises were held yesterday and the faculty and student body made immediate plans to proceed with the year's work.

Professor P. H. Elliott, principal, addressed the students, telling them of the work which was ahead of them and of the willingness of the teaching staff to assist them with their individual problems.

The freshmen will hold their opening dance on Friday evening, and during the week the Students' Council will meet to appoint a secretary and arrange men's and women's activities.

JURYLESS TRIALS AT EDMONTON

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Sept. 24.—Trial by jury was asked for in only one out of thirty-two cases on the docket when Alberta Supreme Court opened its criminal session here yesterday, with Mr. Justice Ford presiding.

The unpopularity of jury trial was so evident that Mr. Justice Ford commented from the bench on what he termed a unique situation.

"All over the province, in connection with the indictable offences of all kinds, accused are electing to be tried by judge alone, and it is not desirable that it should be so," he said. "I am of the opinion Alberta is the only province where such a condition can obtain, though I am not sure what practice is followed in Saskatchewan."

NO TIME NOW FOR THEORIES

Vancouver Speaker Supporting C. J. McDowell Calls For Practical Schemes

"Liberalism must be practical and not something to worship and theorize about. Then will democracy be preserved north of the forty-ninth parallel," declared Dr. J. Lorne J. MacDougall, Liberal candidate in Vancouver East, speaking in support of C. J. McDowell, the local Liberal nominee, at a meeting in the Rex Theatre, Esquimalt, yesterday evening.

"The silent vote, that thing that makes and breaks governments, is in a state of uprising to-day such as it has never been before. We have never had so many quick doctors putting forward theories and that is why we must get down to practical cases and explain how things can be solved on a sound basis," he added.

Dr. MacDougall was well received by the Esquimalt audience, which listened intently to his explanation of the Liberal plan for nationalizing the credit of the nation for use in the national credit scheme.

Dr. MacDougall also pointed out the national assets in the way of commerce, business, rail power, steamship power, man power, and so forth, estimated at $170,000,000,000 and the national liabilities of $12,500,000,000. This, he said, was the credit which the Liberals believed should be under control, and not private control.

In criticism of the C.C.F., the speaker said the party had many fine window dressers, such as Rev. Robert Connell in the provincial house and Angus MacInnis at Ottawa. These were solid men who believed in democratic institutions, but a great number of the party were real belligerent element, who sometime would scuttle the ship and turn it into a Communist organization.

ELECTED MCGEE

"It has come out a bit in spots," he said. "Two weeks ago in Vancouver our good friend Gerry McGeer was running second to Arnold Webster, the C.C.F. candidate. But someone in the C.C.F. published a pamphlet which attacked all men who believed in religion of any kind as peddlers of narcotics. That pamphlet, my friends, has elected Gerry."

Dr. MacDougall said there was a great difference between the C.C.F. plan of socializing all industry and business, and the Liberal plan of nationalizing credit. This credit was the lifeblood of the nation. It bridged the gap between producer and consumer on a co-operative basis and it must be in the hands of the people themselves to operate satisfactorily.

ORIENTAL PROBLEM

He expressed himself very strongly on the Oriental penetration problem and the C.C.F. proposal of giving the franchise to Orientals. At the present rate of increase the Oriental birth in B.C. in twenty-eight years would equal those of the whites and if they were allowed the franchise would soon have representatives in the government. Five-sixths of the green-grocery business of the province was now in Oriental hands. He could see no reason why Canadians should grant a privilege to Orientals which was specifically denied Canadians in the Orient.

The speaker criticized the Bennett administration for removing the C.N.R. lines from competition with the C.P.R. boats on this coast, stating Prince Robert when she was brought back to the Alaska run this year had cleared $68,000.

DAIRY INDUSTRY LOST

He disputed Premier Bennett's claim that the Empire trade treaties had saved Canada by pointing out that as a direct result the dairying industry of Canada had lost markets in the United Kingdom for 9,500,000 pounds of butter and 7,500,000 pounds of cheese.

Mr. McDowell, the candidate, spoke briefly, dealing mainly with local issues.

NATIONAL PARK URGED

He advocated the establishment of a national park on the West Coast, with the completion of the road, if necessary as part of the Transcanada Highway. Secondly, he declared the steamship lines subsidized by the Dominion Government out of Vancouver should have their repair and overhaul work done in the local drydock and shipyards. If Canadian money was good enough to subsidize them to the extent of $9,500,000 a year the Canadian people were good enough to have the ships repaired in the local shipyards.

Mr. McDowell referred to the fact that Mr. Bennett was introduced on Saturday night as the "people's champion" and that the only reason he could liken Mr. Bennett to was Nero, the difference being that Nero fiddled for a few hours and Mr. Bennett had fiddled for five years.

The Conservative candidate, D. B. Flunkett, he said, had suddenly discovered a new reason why he opposed the $125,000 seaplane base for Victoria, that for seven months the port was closed because of fogs. He wondered how the publicity bureau felt about such a slander on the good weather of the city.

SAVED FOR THE BONDHOLDERS

Mr. Bennett, he said, had claimed to have saved Canada by himself. The only thing Bennett had saved Canada for was the bondholders. He deplored the Conservative leader's lack of sympathy for the men in relief camps, all of whom when they protested he had charge with being Communists. The Liberals had an entirely different attitude, believing the camps were not necessary and the men could be put to work on worthwhile undertakings.

COLONEL PECK

Col. Cy Peck was the other speaker, discussing exclusively pension matters. The colonel explained that he was now supporting the Liberal party because the Conservatives had not given the returned men a square deal in the matter of pensions. The pension tribunal from which he had been "fired" by the Bennett government, was set up under legislation brought down by Mackenzie King, but had never been permitted by the Conservatives to function as originally intended.

"Probably our main trouble was the Hon. Murray MacLaren, the Minister of Pensions, was never in favor of the scheme. He was a multimillionaire and yet, as a matter of fact, had applied for a pension himself. And he was the sort of man Mr. Bennett chose to administer pensions," said Col. Peck.

TRIBUNAL PERSECUTED

The speaker said that while on the tribunal he had been subjected to petty persecutions, and recalled how once he had written a friend whose pension application was turned down and expressed sympathy with him.

NEW MINISTER IN ALBERTA

HON. W. W. CROSS, M.D.
above, is Minister of Public Health in the new Social Credit government of Alberta headed by Premier Aberhart.

In the latest, greatly personal, he had used strong language and this was later thrown up to him by the minister.

Col. Peck had some trouble with a heckler called McGraw, who finally got up on the platform and tried to make a speech, but he was hustled down by the audience after he had accused Col. Peck of quitting the Conservatives because he wanted a job from the Liberals.

"I'm standing here in support of the Liberal candidate because I feel the King government was sincere in its effort to give the returned men a fair shake," declared the colonel. J. F. MacInnis, president of the Esquimalt Liberal Association, was chairman, and Major Fred Richardson and Major J. Benson were also on the platform.

SOLUTION OF C.C.F. TOLD

Candidate and Speakers Tell How Commonwealth Will Meet Problems

How the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation plans to meet current national problems first by caring for immediate needs and then by striking at the roots of Canada's difficulties, was told to nearly 100 persons who attended the C.C.F. campaign meeting in Victoria West School yesterday evening.

Rev. Robert Connell, leader of the Opposition, presided and the speakers were Prof. J. King Gordon, C.C.F. candidate in Victoria, and Mrs. Grace MacInnis, wife of the Labor M.P. for South Vancouver.

There were two ways of approaching the present crisis, Mr. Gordon said, either from a money standpoint or from a standpoint of the actual suffering of the Canadian people.

He felt the C.C.F. was approaching the situation from the latter standpoint, while the other parties chose the other approach, which may or may not affect human need.

Any government which did not set itself to the problems of unemployment, standards of living and social security, was failing in its duty to the Canadian people, he said.

MAJOR ISSUE

The unemployment problem constituted the major issue of the day, he said, noting the Bennett government had failed utterly to cope with this problem by increasing unemployment sixfold.

"What we have actually learned in the last six years is how hard it is to starve people to death," he said.

The most immediate thing to be done was to assure that people on relief should be placed on a decent standard of living. This could be done by the institution of non-contributory unemployment insurance.

The Bennett plan for insurance did not include those who were unemployed to-day. The consumer and the worker were to ultimately pay total contributions for this insurance, he said.

There was no reason why there could not be a public works scheme to take care of a large share of unemployment. He suggested a federal housing plan to meet this need.

Following this a C.C.F. government would proceed to tackle unemployment at its root by utilizing the producing power of Canada to meet the demands of the Canadian people.

RAISE LIVING STANDARD

"Ask Mr. Bennett, Mr. King or Mr. Stevens what they are going to do about the standards of living," Mr. Gordon said. Mr. Stevens was proposing minimum wage scales. This would all be well had it not been for the fact that Canada was next door to a country where this had been attempted and codes set up to protect living standards, and failed with the downfall of the New Deal. What Mr. Roosevelt had done, Mr. Gordon said, was to protect the standards of the bankers while unemployment had increased and industry declined.

The C.C.F. would apply itself to the definite problem of raising the standard of living of the Canadian people. "We are out to destroy the system of economy which seeks to take away the homes from the people," Mr. Gordon said.

The C.C.F. insisted that poorhouses were intolerable among Canadians. The party planned old age pensions which would provide for Canadians what they were entitled to in their old age.

After taking the emergent and immediate steps to meet the current problems, the commonwealth government would then set itself to a planned social economy directed at righting the system as a whole, Mr. Gordon said.

"Things are very much alive in Vancouver as far as the C.C.F. is concerned and we feel we can show you some results, and don't forget we are counting on you over here," Mrs. MacInnis said.

TEST FOR PARTY

The C.C.F. offered a reasonable, real and quiet appeal. She paralleled the election for the C.C.F. with a pupil's examination, it being the occasion on which the party would see how far it had progressed in B.C. since 1933.

The electors were deciding only one of two things at the forthcoming election. They would decide whether present conditions would continue under old party lines or whether there would be a change under the C.C.F. administration.

On one point alone the four other parties were agreed that the control of banking must remain in the same hands as at present.

This was one factor on which the C.C.F. differed. The Commonwealth favored ownership of banks and industry by the people.

The result of industrial control by a few was that about 100 persons controlled what the people were going to have in life.

"If you vote for them please do not complain of what you get," Mrs. MacInnis said.

She dealt with "superficial" differences in the other parties. Mr. Bennett appeared with one main solution for the depression—the tariffs—the same which he offered in 1930. She viewed his appropriation of $20,000,000 for unemployment relief as a mere appropriation for "the candidates of capitalism."

Under his tariff remedy, prices were maintained or soared, wages fell, and business was stagnant.

The speaker drew attention to Mr. Bennett's campaign poster in North Vancouver: "I will make capitalism your servant instead of your master." In this, she said, Mr. Bennett admitted capitalism was the master of the masses.

VOTE FOR PRINCIPLES

Mrs. MacInnis urged that electors should not vote for the individual feeling he was a candidate who would go to Ottawa and fight for his principles. An efficient machine controlled the voting of old-line parties, she asserted, and although a Conservative may be a fine man he was bound to stand by the policies of his party.

Mrs. MacInnis referred to the Liberal saying that the C.C.F. was trying to stand on a policy and pointed out that Premiers Hepburn and Pattullo, although both Liberals, advocated two different policies, the former one of non-borrowing and the latter one of "borrowing all you can."

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction leader, was a Conservative for twenty-five years and "one day he woke up and found there was exploitation and misery in Canada."

She charged Mr. Stevens had not announced his new party until Mr. Bennett had been announced as leader, and that if the Prime Minister's health had prevented him from again leading the party, Mr. Stevens would have sought return as the Conservative leader.

"Mr. Bennett did not end the depression, the depression ended Mr. Bennett," Mrs. MacInnis said.

Dealing with Social Credit, she said its advocates favored banking control in present hands and at the same time release a flow of necessities upon the people.

"The Social Credit people are the best example of those who believe that you can eat some one else's cake and have it, too," she said.

"The C.C.F. is not changing things. Things are changed, the people have changed them," Mrs. MacInnis said.

The C.C.F. advocated the necessary change in political and social ideas to keep up with other nations, she said.

The C.C.F. firmly believed the materialistic side of life needed attention before the higher things. The speaker liked to think the party's motto—peace, comfort, culture and freedom.

"We do not aim to carry people off their feet with emotional appeal but we intend to solve our problems in the way of the C.C.F. and let the people help themselves," Mr. Connell said.

The chairman noted Mr. Bennett had made no reference during his recent appearance to promises which he made in 1930. The C.C.F. aimed to do good to all the people in Canada and did not promise jobs or political positions, he said. He suggested people who did not even support the party should secure its literature and study the platform.

The C.C.F. sought to guarantee the liberty and independence "which the people have never yet had."

Yasnaya Polyana, Russia, birthplace of Leo Tolstol, will commemorate in November the twenty-fifth anniversary of his death.

 that the yen shall be valued at its current value for duty purposes, which is about twenty-nine cents, instead of at par, which is about forty-nine cents.

This was the origin of the dispute, Japan taking the stand that she was not getting a reasonable access to the Canadian market. The tariff was the complaint by pointing out the well-known fact that in recent years for every four dollars' worth of goods Canada has been selling to Japan, Canada has been buying only one dollar's worth from her. She has been making under this tariff exchange for some time, and she began negotiations with this country months ago in the hope that a somewhat more equal arrangement might be arrived at. Ottawa was reluctant to move until the Japanese government announced that the alternative would be such a high duty on Canadian goods entering Japan that that market would be practically closed. No agreement was reached, Japan clapped on her prohibitive duty, and Canada replied with a surtax of 33 1-3 per cent—pyramiding other import restrictions.

Canada's trade with Japan until this new tariff was in effect was worth approximately $22,000,000 and the balance in this country's favor averaged $13,000,000. Since British Columbia's loss will be between $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 annually, it was natural that a protest went to Ottawa from this province against the Bennett government's crass economic folly in throwing away an export trade which was worth to Canada $17,000,000. It was pointed out at the time that Japan was ready to send experts to Ottawa to go fully into the matter at any time convenient to the government. This proposal included the proviso that the present trading arrangement should not be disturbed meanwhile.

The point it was suggested such experts would emphasize was that this country might well consider the fact that if the United States could enter into an arrangement with the Island Kingdom, there ought to be no difficulty between Canada and Japan, since one Japanese statesman observed when this proposal was submitted, "presumably, there exists little, if any, difference in the standard of living of the worker between Canada and her neighbor on the south."

This Japanese authority further emphasized the fact that the neighboring republic has not imposed any exchange compensation duty on Japanese goods, "and the trade relations of the two countries have been developing smoothly through a measure of control exercised by Japan on a few items of her exports."

Japan has made it clear that she would much prefer to continue amicable trading relations with Canada; but it is only reasonable that she should desire a more even exchange. Incidentally, Mr. Ginjoro Fujihara, a member of the Japanese House of Peers and president of the Oji Paper Manufacturing Company of Tokyo, in an interview when he passed through this port early last month, dropped the hint that Japan would not suffer much if its country's export trade to Canada were lost entirely, since Japan is selling such a large amount to other nations. Canada is the heavy loser, mainly because of Mr. Bennett's obsession that imports are the products of the devil and ought to be abolished.

SELASSIE, DIPLOMAT

WHATEVER MAY HAPPEN IN THE military field, it can not be disputed that Emperor Haile Selassie has outmanoeuvred Mussolini in the diplomatic arena. Admittedly on the face of it, the Italian dictator has a very poor case, but he has made it worse by his way of handling it, and there is scarcely a nation in the world upon which he can rely for support. For example, Haile Selassie's attitude as a member of the League of Nations has been scrupulously correct. He has agreed to go before an arbitration tribunal under the auspices of the League, while Mussolini has refused this recourse and, instead, has sent 200,000 troops to East Africa.

Haile Selassie has accepted in principle the recommendations of the special committee of the League as a basis of negotiation, while Mussolini has rejected them. Selassie has offered to make concessions which would not compromise the sovereignty of Ethiopia, while Mussolini virtually demands the political, military and economic control of that country. Worse than that, the Italian press, which is controlled by Mussolini's nephew, has made the issue one of color, thereby antagonizing practically every nation which is not white. In this controversy Ethiopia has shown a higher form of civilization than Italy, from which much more should be expected.

The situation remains ominous, in view of the continued military mobilization in Italy, although unless Mussolini runs amok and tries to make war upon the whole of Europe there is no danger of an attack upon his country. There is good reason for the belief that like all dictators everywhere, Mussolini fears his own suppressed people more than he does any prospective outside aggressors, and his intensive mobilization is being conducted with a wary eye to his domestic situation, which is not at all promising. It is that situation which is prompting him to resort to the last recourse of all dictators—a war of conquest.

RING BRUISERS

TO-NIGHT IN NEW YORK TWO HEAVYweight ring bruisers will give a performance which will attract unusual attention from the sporting world. One of them is a negro named Joe Louis, aged twenty-one, whose recent exploits have entitled him to the rank of prospective contender for the heavyweight championship. He says he will beat his opponent. The other is Max Baer, pugilistic clown and former heavyweight champion, who also says he will beat his opponent. Baer was recently defeated by a comparatively obscure fighter named Jimmy Braddock, but attributes his defeat to carelessness and lack of condition. He declares he will do better this time.

The majority of experts predict a victory for Louis, who is believed to be the most formidable fighter of the negro race since Jack Johnson. A few think that Baer, who is big, tough and clever, will restore the prestige he recently lost by putting his opponent away. Neither of them would have stood the slightest chance against Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries or Jack Dempsey in their prime, and ring enthusiasts never are sure that a championship fight nowadays is not likely to develop into a tango. Of one thing we may be certain, and that is that Louis will have the backing of Amos and Andy at the head of the whole of Harlem.

A LOSS FOR THE BENCH

THERE WILL BE WIDESPREAD REgret over the untimely death of Mr. Justice F. G. Lucas in Vancouver. Judge Lucas was appointed to the Supreme Court bench only last spring and performed the duties of his high office in such a way as to augur for him a successful judicial career.
 He was highly respected not only by the members of his profession but by a host of friends in other avenues of life. Generous, kindly and fair in his relations with his fellow-citizens, he had built up an exemplary reputation during his thirty years of practice in this province. There will be a conservation in the sympathy which will be extended to his family in their poignant bereavement.

DEBT FIGURES

"UNSCRUPULOUS" IS A MILD TERM to apply to the material being broadcast by the Bennett Conservative Publicity Bureau. The precise term would be impolite.

Full page advertisements from that source proclaim that the national debt "had soared to sickening proportions" during the regime of Liberal Leader King.

Canada's debt decreased from $2,422,135,802, in 1922, the first fiscal year of Mr. King's government, to $2,177,763,959 in 1930, the last fiscal year of Liberal administration.

But observe the condition-to-day, after five years of Bennett rule. The national debt on March 31, 1935, had mounted to $2,847,678,000.

In other words, Mr. King's administration reduced the debt by $244,371,846; Mr. Bennett's increased it by $669,914,044.

The following detailed comparison of the net debt variations since 1923 is illuminating:

	Net Debt	Increase or Decrease
1923 (King)	$2,453,776,869	(I) $ 31,641,067
1924 (King)	2,617,783,275	(D) 35,993,504
1925 (King)	2,617,437,686	(D) 345,589
1926 (King)	2,389,781,099	(D) 27,706,587
1927 (King)	2,347,834,370	(D) 41,896,729
1928 (King)	2,296,850,233	(D) 50,984,137
1929 (King)	2,225,584,705	(D) 71,345,528
1930 (King)	2,177,763,959	(D) 47,790,746
1931- (King-Bennett)	2,281,611,937	(I) 83,847,978
1932 (Bennett)	2,375,846,172	(I) 114,234,236
1933 (Bennett)	2,506,480,826	(I) 230,634,654
1934 (Bennett)	2,729,978,141	(I) 133,497,315
1935 (Bennett)	2,847,678,000	(I) 117,699,859

These official figures speak for themselves as to the veracity of the Conservative advertising.

STAGE VETERAN PASSES

THE DEATH OF DE WOLF HOPPER REmoves from the world of stage and radio one of its outstanding figures. In recent times Mr. Hopper has been an accomplished narrator for a company in Kansas City, and his radio announcements, featured by his splendid voice and perfection of speech have been widely enjoyed. Old-timers will remember him as one of the most famous comedians of light opera, especially in the productions of Gilbert and Sullivan in which he won world-wide reputation. He was famous, also, for his marital experiences, which equalled those of Henry the Eighth, although, unlike Henry, he did not use the headsman's axe in effecting his various separations. The divorce court met all requirements in that direction, and nobody got hurt unless it was De Wolf Hopper—in the pocketbook rather than in the neck.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

WEEKS

What cruel savages are we!
 Let but the friend of flowers depart
 They'll stab the roses to the heart
 And slay at beauty till it bleeds.

They'll rush the parapet and gate
 To get where lovely things are grown
 And with a fury all their own
 Will leave the garden desolate.

They'll smother with demoniac glee
 The zinnia and the marigold;
 With cunning and with daring bold
 They'll throttle all that's fair to see.

Turning your back for but a week
 Upon the garden that you keep
 The savage weeds on it will leap
 And leave its lovely pathways bleak.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

CHEAPER THAN JAILS
 The Charlotte Observer

Taxpayers have a right to take their choice between paying $200 a year to keep a boy in jail or $600 to keep him in school. It's peculiar that with these statistics of comparison flashing themselves into the faces of people, they still insist, some of them, that they are being bled to death to support public education, but never a chirp comes from them as to the cost they are being made to bear because of crime among these young people. And it is the young people, unhappily, among whom crime is the more prevalent.

BLACK AND WHITE

FROM THE SPORT PAGES one gathers that Messrs. Baer and Louis are going to fight to-night for the purpose of making a great deal of money and, quite incidentally, to decide who shall meet Mr. James Braddock for the world's heavyweight championship. Mr. Braddock by the way is classed as the forgotten man of the ring although a champion.
 When you see the frantic interest in this jungle encounter among the intelligent people of America, it would be difficult to decide who is the champion mug o' the world. Apparently in these matters most men are equal.

However, the present commercial undertaking, called a championship fight, has larger ramifications and a deeper meaning than the mere money to these affairs. You will recall that when Mr. Louis beat Mr. Carnera, the pride of Italy, the international repercussions were serious. Suddenly through the jungles of Africa went the word that a black man had licked a white man before the admiring gaze of the world.

Observers said this had a moete-dressing influence in Italy on the eve of its war on Ethiopia—made Italians realize that perhaps black men could fight after all, and if they succeeded in Mediasa-Square Garden, they might be highly disagreeable in the rocky passes of Ethiopia. In the same way, the news put new courage into the Ethiopians, who evidently felt that if Carnera was as easy as that the rest of the Italians, much smaller in stature, should be a treat.
 Ethiopia was soon aflame with enthusiasm for war.

Diplomats thus attached great importance to the victory of the Negro over the Italian. To-night in many a European chancellery and in the offices of League of Nations, they will be listening in on the second battle between a negro and a white man. If Mr. Baer wins, probably nothing will stop the Italians. If Mr.
 Louis knocks out Mr. Baer, the Ethiopians are likely to break out the following morning.

Every Negro in Africa will hear about the result of the battle over the jungle drums. Millions of ignorant savages will be listening in because the result of the fight seems to be something vital to them. Poor creatures, they think it is a test of their race, a trial of their strength against the strength of the white man, a noble encounter fraught with racial destiny. To them the fight is of importance and so they listen and wait. But the civilized men and women of America will listen in just as intently, with just as much enthusiasm, though they know that two inferior fellows, of a peculiarly low mentality (whom no one would invite to dinner) are bashing each other in public solely for the purpose of taking the money away from the suckers. This shows you how much more intelligent are the white people of America than the poor blacks of Africa.

(I have made it wiser that Baer will last three rounds, but I am getting rather worried about the result.)

MYSTERY

DEEP IN THE BOSOM of the Canadian electorate is hidden the secret of October 14. Did you ever pause for a moment, while waiting for a street car, to consider the curious coincidence of a democratic election, the mystery locked within those shadowy depths?

You may feel pretty sure how an election is going to turn out. You may feel certain that the federal government is doomed and that the Liberals will have a majority, but the mystery remains.

Everybody knows how he will vote himself. Most men know how their neighbors will vote. Yet even in the smallest constituency no one can tell what will come out of the ballot box.

 No one ever really knows, least of all the public itself, what is going on in those dim, heaving immensities.
 No one can tell at any moment what that goosamer thing, public opinion, really is. Looked forever from one another are the minds of men, each a single unit which can never be joined to any other, each a little world of its own which can never communicate its deeper workings, can only express a few of its lighter, frothier notions.

That is what makes democracy the most interesting form of government.
 Under Fascism or Communism or other forms of dictatorship, you can find out what is going to happen by knowing a few minds on top. Under democracy you can never know what is going to happen, ever. It is a glorious thing, this democracy, and the instincts should enjoy it.

What is going on now, deep down in the boiling cauldron? What are the Canadian people really thinking?
 Don't let anyone try to tell you he knows. No one knows. The open and above-board system of government is in reality the most mysterious, the most uncertain in the world. (There is a great thought hidden here somewhere if you care to dig it out, but probably you are only interested in winning your bet on Mr. Plunkett.)

ALARMED by the present plague of Black Widow spiders, I wrote to a leading local physician asking him how a spider bite should be treated. I thought this information would be valuable to the readers of this column. My medical friend's reply I consider interesting and scientific so I give it to you herewith:
 "When a spider attacks an ordinary person, we attempt to cure the person attacked by removing the poison.
 But after reading what you write in the newspapers, I would say that if a Black Widow spider bit you, an experience physician would find the spider and attempt to cure it by removing the poison." This is what you get for telling the public the truth about things.

FETLOCKS CLIPPED

HON. S. P. TOLMIE, whose stories still have about them the rich flavor of the bannard, revealed at the Conservative meeting last Saturday some of the inner secrets of practical politics. He told how he had found Hon. Grote Sterling, now Minister of National Defence, as an un-seasoned and unrepresentative "brothcho" in the Ottawa, and how he had instructed the faithful Conservatives of the district to "reach his mane; dock his tail and clip his fet-locks."

This treatment apparently improved the appearance of the future Minister of National Defence considerably, but when he presented himself to Dr. Tolmie "for inspection" (apparently like a horse in a show ring), the seasoned horseman's eye of the Doctor noted one defect. Mr.
 Sterling was trying to get by with an old and "rusty" hat. So the Doctor ordered him to buy a Canadian hat and "look as much like a Canadian as he could." After getting the Canadian hat it seems that Mr. Sterling's future as a statesman was assured.

It is a charming story, which must have been pleasant for the Minister of National Defence to hear in the distinguished presence of his leader.
 I repeat it here only to indicate to you in a rough way and make you fully appreciate what candidates for the House of Commons have to undergo in secret, what inspections, what roachings of the manes, docking of the tails, clipping of the fetlocks, buying of new hats. After that, the least you can do to show your appreciation of the finished article is to vote for it.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

(From The Times Files)

The streets committee of the City Council at its meeting last evening settled the threatened trouble over the paving contracts recently awarded to the Warwick Company and there is now apparently no obstacle to the company proceeding with the execution of the work.

Appreciative comments were heard on all sides last evening as the visiting delegates of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association viewed the splendid illuminations of the stately parliamentary pile.

After having assured two deputations who were present that the matter would not be settled until the members had paid a visit of inspection to the proposed site of the ash and door factory to be erected in the vicinity of Bridge Street by Messrs.
 Moore and Whittington, the streets committee of the City Council half an hour later unanimously passed a resolution authorizing the building inspector to issue the permit.

Another moving picture theatre is to be established in Victoria under the proprietorship of Wm. Davidson, who was granted a permit to make alterations in the store on Fort Street adjacent to the premises of Aler Feden.

The B.C. Rugby Union meets tonight at the Driard Hotel. Delegates from Vancouver and Nanaimo have been invited. This meeting will straighten out the plans for the year and some light may be thrown on the dates for the provincial and coast competitions so that players will know where they stand, and be able to commence training.

Part of the Al. G. Barnes circus, which is to be a part side attraction at the fall fair next week, arrived in town this afternoon on the E. and N.
 Railway from Nanaimo.

TIMBER, RAINFALL AND TOURISTS

To the Editor:—Why should we continue to allow foreign timber speculators to convert Vancouver Island's timber resources into an elephant's graveyard? Is it not time we realized that this island contains the greatest stand of export timber on the whole Pacific Coast.

Only recently we had the most severe rainfall in history, and probably this summer or a few years hence we will have the greatest drought this island has ever had, followed by a fire that will jump from Sooke or Cowichan Lake basin (including Alberni and Comox Districts). That would practically wipe out the export lumber industry of British Columbia, likewise completely destroying the agricultural districts of Vancouver Island.

SAYS HISTORY IS FORMATIVE

G. T. Hankin Points Out Dangers in Wrong Teaching; E. Salter Davies Speaks

Every child at school unconsciously shapes much of his attitude to the outside world from what he learns in his history lessons. Even if he later forgets nine-tenths of what he has learned, the influence of the whole remains in his outlook. This was the theme of G. T. Hankin, staff inspector of the British Board of Education, speaking yesterday evening in the hall room of the Empress Hotel.

The dangers which can underlie the knowledge acquired from the history book and the benefits accruing from the correct teaching of the subject were outlined by Mr. Hankin, who was speaking on the subject of "Truth in History."

He quoted first the peril of the attitude recently taken by a German general, that history should be adapted to promote patriotism, by the omission of all that might be derogatory to the name of the nation in which it was being taught.

This he termed an offence against morality, stating that the purpose of the individual to appreciate truth and to form a free and independent thought was the prime principle of education. He pleaded for patriotism on an intellectual, not an emotional basis, founded on genuine knowledge and understanding.

The danger of bias on the part of the historian was exemplified by Macaulay; but there were other biases, not so noticeable, in the majority of history books.

MISUNDERSTOOD TERMS

Mr. Hankin stressed the fact that words have their own different shade of meaning for each generation. He quoted the phrase "British Empire" with three different senses, the first applicable up to the American War of Independence, the second ending with the Treaty of Versailles and the emergence of the Dominions as independent members of the League of Nations, and the third in the British Commonwealth of Nations to-day.

Extending the phrase by the addition of the word "great," Mr. Hankin pointed out the danger of thinking to-day in the terms which applied in the days when empires were judged by their territorial area. If the word were to be taken in its other sense, he pointed to the achievements of the smaller nations, ranking with the more extensive ones in their influence upon the course of the world's history.

Another word quoted by Mr. Hankin as a dangerous one was "Prosperity." "Surely what matters is the distribution of wealth—the general standard of living," he said. "There is a danger of mistaking the aggression or wealth in the hands of a few for real prosperity."

Such words were dangerous because they were misused, because they had been written at a time when their significance was different, or because they had become clichés.

NATIONS PERSONIFIED

The greatest danger in all history teaching is the personification of nations," he said, referring to the use of such phrases as: "In 1756 France ever the value of the policy is—in cash.

Or you may decide to have a monthly income for a certain number of years or for the balance of your lifetime.

More than that, your Imperial Endowment Policy will be of great importance if you marry. In any case it will help you to achieve your ambitions.

Think it over. You may make many investments, but none will give you greater satisfaction than an Imperial Life policy. You are probably insurable now; later you may not be. Your name and address will bring you full information.

nations," he said, referring to the use of such phrases as: "In 1756 France as a single person, not as an aggregation of separate members.

Stating that history was the most important subject taught in the schools, he said that the requirements of the teaching of it as follows:

First: Up-to-date text books, the most accurate available, and written in terms not leading to misunderstanding.

Second: The replacement of mere lists of facts, dates and events by the realization of the growth and perpetual state of change of the world.

Third: Hard work and understanding on the part of the teacher, with the textbook helping, not leading the way.

History so taught would lead the child to a search for truth, the most valuable asset with which he could be endowed.

SPECIALIZATION DANGER

E. Salter Davies, C.B.E., M.A., director of education for Kent, speaking shortly and impromptu at the end of Mr. Hankin's address, referred to the danger of specializing the education of the majority to the specialized needs of the few who would later continue to universities.

"It is typical of much of the education going on in our schools," he said, "that we must get rid of the idea that education is a matter of given facts—that the function of the teacher is to create scholars and specialists. Education should keep in mind the needs of the average boy and girl."

FISHING FEES ARE TOO HIGH

Non-resident Anglers in B.C. Pay Huge License For Outdoor Sport

As part of its campaign to secure a reduction of fishing licenses for non-resident anglers in British Columbia, the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau has secured information of licenses paid in other fishing areas.

Non-resident anglers of the province of Alberta are required to obtain licenses for fishing at the rate of $5 a season and a daily fee of $1. The tourist family seven-day license in New Brunswick for salmon and trout, good for non-residents and members of his immediate family accompanying him under eighteen years of age is $5.

In Quebec, non-residents leasing fishing rights or who are bona fide members of fishing clubs leasing fishing rights, including their wives and their children under eighteen years of age, a license of $25 is required.

In Ontario a license good for tourists and members of their immediate family costs $6.

To make the comparison clear, suppose a family of five—husband, wife and three children—are touring through Canada. If they want one or two days fishing in New Brunswick, the cost for the whole family would be $25. When they came to Quebec the whole family would be able to fish for $25. In Ontario the cost would be $30. In British Columbia it would cost them $25. If this same family happened to be American, they could fish in Oregon for $5.

The Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau points out that all the above provinces are friendly competitors with British Columbia in its efforts to attract visiting anglers, and whilst no doubt the fishing in British Columbia is better than can be obtained elsewhere, the Bureau is sure that it would be an advantage if license fees were altered so as to include again the daily $1 license and also a family license.

Athabaska Gold Find

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Sept. 24.—"Gold can be seen in all formations so far struck and it looks as if the field has major possibilities," said Dr. F. J. Alcock of Ottawa, government geologist, who has just conducted a survey of Canada's latest mineral field in the Lake Athabaska area.

Dr. Alcock was in charge of eight parties which made a geological survey of the territory from the Alberta boundary, during which they covered an area of between 7,000 and 8,000 square miles.

More Salteries Will Operate

Government Issues Thirty-one Licenses For B.C. Plants This Year

Expecting better prices and possibly a larger market in Japan next year, the salmon dry salting industry of B.C. will operate this year on a much larger scale than last season.

It was announced by the Department of Fisheries this morning that thirty-one licenses had been issued to salmon dry salteries as compared with fifteen that operated last year.

This completed the list for the season. September 18 was the last day for taking license applications. To set quotas for each of the plants, the salt fish marketing board will hold a meeting of the operators this hold it is understood. This board has full control over the marketing of the products, determines how much shall be produced and what amount each plant shall turn out.

Mr. George said under the terms of the B.C. Social Credit League, that Mr. George had an announcement to make, several people in the audience, chiefly women, rose to their feet to object. When Mr. George continued to make his announcement they and several others noisily left the hall, talking loudly as they walked down the aisle.

DICKIE FLAYS AIMS OF C.C.F.

Not "Sane or Sensible" and Are on Way to Communism, He Says at Royal Oak

"There are no C.C.F. followers here, because you all look like sane and sensible people to me," C. H. Dickie, Federal Conservative candidate for Nanaimo, said to the audience at his campaign meeting at Royal Oak yesterday evening.

He denounced the C.C.F. as those who had taken the first steps towards Communism and anarchy. If the C.C.F. were elected, Canada in six months would be Communist, he declared.

"If the Liberals are elected, Mr. Mackenzie King will spend billions of dollars and impose a staggering burden of taxation," Mr. Dickie went on. "If we are to be saved, Mr. Bennett is the only man. He saved the prairie provinces from bankruptcy, and has plans for the future which merit the confidence of every thinking man. Mr. King poured millions of dollars into the United States through tariffs unfavorable to farmers."

R. A. Woodson said he knew Mr. Bennett was a man who would carry out all his promises. He claimed British Columbia had suffered as the result of fruit, vegetables and meat being dumped into this province under liberal legislation.

P. S. Cunliffe of Nanaimo scoffed at Liberal posters stating that a government under Mr. King would regain markets lost by the Conservatives. The lumber industry had boomed, and trade in other lines had increased under Mr. Bennett, he said. The other parties, Mr. Cunliffe claimed, urged repeal of Section 98 only for vote-grabbing purposes.

Mrs. Dickie sang a duet with W. R. Wormleighton, who also gave a solo. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served afterwards.

Lumber Exports Show Pick-up

Overseas Business For B.C. in August Recovered

British Columbia's lumber business showed signs of recovery in August with heavier shipments to both the United Kingdom and Australian markets, according to figures compiled by the Pacific Coast Lumber Association Bureau.

Total overseas shipments from British Columbia ports amounted to 732,430 feet during the month, nearly a 40 per cent gain from the July figure of 524,263 feet. The volume was not so great as August last year, however, when 782,220 feet were shipped.

The United Kingdom took 43,831,000 feet, against 36,000,000 in July, and Australia took 17,855,817 feet, against 7,611,000.

The overseas business for the first eight months of the year shows a falling off from last year, with shipments aggregating 5,087,705 feet, against 5,645,639 feet.

The United Kingdom took 280,498,343 feet up to the end of August, compared with 307,186,463 feet in the corresponding period of last year. The Australian business held up, however, with the total export 88,761,000, against 85,722,000 feet last year.

Japanese and Chinese sales were considerably down, accounting for the rest of the drop. The full effect of the break-down in trade between Canada and Japan is shown in the timber export figures. Of 25,774,278 feet shipped from the Pacific Coast to Japan, British Columbia supplied only 144,895 feet, a negligible amount, where formerly it was a heavy shipper. The business all went to United States mills.

Ottawa, Sept. 24 (Canadian Press).—The Book of Remembrance, which will be deposited on the altar in the Memorial Chamber here, will be completed in about two years. Names of more than 70,000 Canadians who died in service during the war or who died of war disabilities prior to April 1, 1922, will be inscribed in the volume. James Purves of Ottawa has been engaged on the work for three years.

SOCIAL CREDIT IS EXPLAINED

Meeting Confused When P. E. George Approves National Dividends

At a meeting which divided into two factions when P. E. George, Reconstruction Party candidate, took the platform to announce his endorsement of a national credit policy for Canada, W. A. Tuttle, Social Credit candidate in Vancouver - Burrard, yesterday evening at the City Temple, explained the Douglas Social Credit system and intimated that under such a system every man, woman and child in Canada would receive an income, whether they worked or not, and whether or not they had private income.

In answer to a question from a member of the audience, Mr. Tuttle said it would make no difference how the income was spent, or whether or not it was spent monthly, upon receipt, or saved.

When it was announced by the speaker that the speaker, president of the B.C. Social Credit League, that Mr. George had an announcement to make, several people in the audience, chiefly women, rose to their feet to object. When Mr. George continued to make his announcement they and several others noisily left the hall, talking loudly as they walked down the aisle.

Mr. George said under the terms of the B.C. Social Credit League, that Mr. George had an announcement to make, several people in the audience, chiefly women, rose to their feet to object. When Mr. George continued to make his announcement they and several others noisily left the hall, talking loudly as they walked down the aisle.

Mr. George further explaining the point this morning said his announcement at last night's meeting was not a commitment of his party but purely a declaration of his own belief.

Called to Order
Several times the chairman was forced to call the meeting to order, but on the whole Mr. Tuttle was given a fair hearing and members of the audience applauded what he had to say. At the conclusion of his address he answered several questions.

"Money is not wealth," Mr. Tuttle said. "Money can be made of anything—shells, for instance. There are 4,000,000 people, mostly in Africa, who still use shells for money. Anything that is acceptable can be used for money."

Ninety per cent of the money in Canada consists of bank credit, Mr. Tuttle said. At the present time, he continued, the monetary system of Canada was in the hands of a private few. It took only the stroke of a pen to produce all the money that was needed, he said. But it needed work to produce wealth, money and wealth being quite two different things.

"I have no platform," the speaker said, "except to abolish poverty by means of national credit."

In reply to a question from the audience, Mr. Tuttle said: "The C.C.F. would accept the Douglas system as a means of abolishing poverty; he would definitely say vote for them. He went on to say the C.C.F. was clinging to the same financial system which was holding Canada in bondage today."

Another of the audience asked the speaker why Premier Aberhart of Alberta went to Premier Bennett for money if it was so easy to make the money by a stroke of a pen. Mr. Tuttle said Mr. Aberhart needed the money for current bills, as he had found the treasury empty.

Mr. George was asked if he would be prepared to come out as a Social Credit candidate. He answered "no."

Mr. Cree spoke briefly. He said the economic machine was divided into three parts—production, distribution and consumption. There were no such things as economic laws, he said. The machine being entirely man-made, there was no difficulty about production, the world never being wealthier than at the present time. The desire to consume was in everyone, he said, so there was no difficulty there. The difficulty was in the distribution.

"There is no poverty in the world today," he said. "The world is so wealthy that coffee is being destroyed and sheep are being burned. The only way man can live, under the modern economic system is by money and the only way to get money is by work. Have you ever heard of any political party with a cure for unemployment? Man is entitled to life by some means other than work. Surely we are entitled to dividends from Canada."

The Senior Leader Corps of the Y.M.C.A. will hold a meeting at 7 o'clock this evening, with Norman Collins presiding, to make plans for the season and to elect officers. On Wednesday, October 2, the Toastmasters' International and the Speakers' Club will hold organization meetings and on the following day the women's public speaking class, a new activity, will be inaugurated. Reports on the success of the Y booth at the fair will be heard at a meeting on September 28 when plans for the membership campaign to be held October 15 to 22 will be drawn up. E. G. Rowbottom will preside.

different things. The monetary system of Canada, he declared, had not a thing to do with the industrial system.

There was a monopoly of credit in Canada, the speaker said, and one result of that monopoly was the enormous increase in the national debt since Confederation and the payment of huge and staggering sums in interest.

He said the idea that "money for nothing" was demoralizing to the recipient was ridiculous. There was a justification for a national dividend, he said. There was a cultural inheritance that was the birthright of everyone in Canada, and the only way in which to enjoy that inheritance was to have a certain, sure sum of money.

"The national dividend would come to every man, woman and child in this country," the speaker said. "Even a small dividend would sweep away the last vestiges of poverty in our land. It would remove the cloud of poverty that is hanging over the homes of Canada. We would enter on a period of permanent prosperity for the whole Dominion. It would be in a manner which would not cause inflation."

Mr. Tuttle said the Douglas Social Credit idea was amazingly simple. The only way the people would get it was by clamoring for it. People could get it, he explained, without being experts in the way of administering it. It was not necessary for people to know much about it, he said.

"It will give everyone a share in the permanent prosperity of Canada," he said. "We should dictate the policy to our politicians," he stated, praising the women for the way they got the vote by dictating to the politicians.

The national dividend would be scientifically measured out, Mr. Tuttle said. He spoke of the year 1929, "when things were going fine." In that year it was estimated by experts, every man, woman and child in Canada would have received $140, which would mean about fifty dollars a month per family.

"SWEET AWAY DEPRESSION"

"That would completely sweep away depression," the speaker said. "If we can only all get together and find some way of getting our ideas across."

The B.C. Social Credit League was not a political party, Mr. Tuttle stated, although it was taking part in the election.

PARENTAGE OF BABY ISSUE

"Mothers" Ordered to Present Arguments in Court Before Judge

Associated Press
St. Louis, Sept. 24.—Two "mothers," each claiming parentage of a month-old baby, to-day were ordered to present their arguments in court here Wednesday morning.

Judge William Des Back, the Solomon in the case, instructed Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, forty-three-year-old former society matron and alleged kidnapper, to bring the child before the St. Louis court of appeal.

As a result of the trial, a writ of habeas corpus was obtained by Anna Ware, nineteen-year-old unmarried mother of Newton, Pa., who asserted the child belonged to her.

It was alleged in the application for the writ that Muench, who was her husband, Dr. Ludwig Muench, a St. Louis physician, arranged with other persons to bring Mrs. Ware to St. Louis and thus obtain custody of her then unborn child.

Mrs. Muench, several days later, announced the birth of a boy on August 18 at her home. A birth certificate later was filed by Dr. Muench, as attending physician.

When she announced the birth, Mrs. Muench termed it a "gift" from God to console her in her time of need. She had been childless through twenty-three years of married life.

Glories of Winchester Are Vividly Described

Clubwomen and High School Students Hear Fine Address on "Cradle of Our Civilization" By J. A. Peart

Winchester, ancient capital of England from Anglo-Saxon times to the reign of Henry the Third, and "the cradle of our civilization," was vividly described in the two illustrated lectures given by J. A. Peart, director of education for Winchester, here yesterday.

In the morning he gave his address before the assembled students at the Victoria High School, and in the afternoon entertained the Women's Canadian Club, both audiences enjoying the fine pictures and the speaker's delightful narrative to the full.

MALLOVED BY TRADITION
Tracing the history of the ancient Hampshire city back to 2,000 years before Christ, Mr. Peart recalled that through all the centuries Winchester had been "the home of great-hearted men and women whose first great thought was their duty towards God and their pleasure in working for the sake of that work, rather than for material gain."

On every hand relics were to be found attesting to this hallowed tradition, and in his closing remarks the speaker expressed the belief that the great hope for the future of the world lay in a rebirth of the ideals and high principles which alike animated these great figures and humble craftsmen of the past.

With pictures thrown on the screen, Mr. Peart showed the magnificent cathedral, first built in the thirteenth century and which, with the exception of the Lady Chapel, is entirely Norman, a lasting monument to the architects and craftsmen who designed it. He showed close-up pictures of carving in the high, vaulted roof, to illustrate the love of the ancient craftsmen for his task, each exquisite little carved detail bearing evidence of the workman's initiative and skill.

EXQUISITE WORK

The delicate tracery of the choir screen, the reredos, the choir stalls and chantries, the beautiful gates—the earliest example of bent iron work in England—at the pilgrims' shrine, the fine old font given by Henry of Blois, brother of William the Conqueror, and still used for baptisms, all were shown on the screen.

THE FIRST PARLIAMENT

In the great hall of Winchester the first English Parliament, called by Edward the Third, sat, and for 400 years parliament was held within its walls, the forerunner of the British parliaments of to-day.

The pictures of this hall, shown by the speaker, revealed the table set into the wall and believed to be the original Round Table of King Arthur and his knights. Behind a tapestry on the same wall was an opening leading to another room, behind which the king sat concealed during the proceedings, in order to hear all the well-known saying: "Even walls have ears."

Mr. Peart showed pictures of the sacred well in the crypt of the cathedral, a well which was sacred as far back as the Stone Age, and from which the water for baptisms is still drawn. The ancient chests, in which rest the bones of all the Anglo-Saxon kings who reigned in Winchester, with the exception of Alfred the Great, were shown on the screen, their carvings still retaining their pristine beauty.

EMPIRE DAY SERVICE

Reference was made to the annual Empire Day service in the cathedral on May 24, attended by the 2,700 pupils under Mr. Peart's charge, and the broadcasting from the cathedral last Christmas morning of the carol service by the choir, thus sharing with the rest of the empire "this great heritage which is ours."

Mr. Peart also showed pictures of St. Swithun's Church, one of the smallest and oldest churches in England which still holds daily services; Winchester College, built by William of Wykeham for poor boys, and where the prefect system was first introduced; the former priory, now the deanery, where King Charles and his court, including Samuel Pepys, Isaac Walton, of "The Compleat Angler" fame, and Christopher Wren, fled to escape the plague of London. Nell Gwynne's house, "to whom, despite Hollywood's ban, we are grateful because she founded Chelsea Hospital for old soldiers, and because we owe the bells of St. Martin's and other great gifts to her bounty."

YOUTH HOSTEL

The old mill on the Itchen, built in 1711, is now a Youth Hostel, Mr. Peart said. He paid tribute to this great youth movement "that has no international prejudices, no racial jealousy and which offers the greatest hope for the future peace of the world."

He also showed a picture of the St. Cross Almshouse, where since 1103 the wayfarer has been able to obtain bread and ale for the asking, "the original dole."

Mrs. Helen Tait delighted the gathering with her two songs, "Still as the Night" and "Ab, Though the Silver Moon Were Mine," accompanied at the piano by Miss Sheila Tait.

Mrs. E. J. Willis presided at the Women's Canadian Club meeting and Mrs. W. G. Wilson expressed the thanks of the gathering to the speaker, to Mr. Huxtable for operating the lantern, and to the artists.

ANNULMENTS ARE PROTESTED

Anglican Bishop's Stand on Law and Inter-denominational Marriages

Canadian Press
Calgary, Sept. 24.—Protest against the action of some judges in Quebec granting annulment of marriages between members of different religious bodies on grounds that are purely ecclesiastical is contained in a statement issued here yesterday by Rt. Rev. Ralph L. Sherman, Anglican Bishop of Calgary, for the House of Bishops, which held annual meetings here last week.

The statement declared that annulment judgments "find no warrant in the law of the land, to which all citizens are alike and equally subject."

"Such judgments," the statement said, "are also entirely inimical to the security of family life."

"We are informed on good authority that such marriages have been annulled upon the sole ground that they were not solemnized according to the rites of the Roman Catholic church. It is to be noted, further, that the validity of these marriages has been definitely established by the highest court of appeal in the realm—the Privy Council.

"In this Dominion all religious communions are equal before the law, and we respectfully call upon all governments—federal and provincial alike, to uphold this principle without fear or favor."

QUINTUPLETS NOT FOR FILMS

Mary Pickford's Attempts to Sign Them Up Abortive

New York, Sept. 24.—Mary Pickford, here on a business trip, yesterday admitted she had made little progress in her plans to arrange for the appearance of the Dionne quintuplets in movies.

"I doubt very much if the Ontario government, particularly Minister Croll, Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare, will approve any such contract," Miss Pickford said. "I did come here in hopes of signing them up. Beyond that, I can't say anything."

She has given up all thought of further appearances on the screen here. "When things become a bit more settled, I plan to adopt some children."

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1935
Adverse planetary aspects are active today, though certain benefic influences are discerned by astrologers. This is a time for employing mental vision for great tasks, and for attending great success in the modern scene.

In the early hours the mind should be alert and the vision reliable, but unless men use their brains expertly they will meet with great misfortune. Violence appears to attend labor demands, unusual this country, where cooperation strikes and other troubles. Cooperation is advised by those who see into the future.

In the evening women are well directed. They will often be the counselors of men, for they will foresee perils and reach conclusions by short-cut methods.

Public gifts are to be discovered by many persons, who will preach peace with intense earnestness that comes from foreknowledge of what war will mean next year.

This is read as a happy wedding date for those who plight truth near the sunset hours. Many marriages are forecast and young love will flourish as a green bay tree, especially in the schools and universities.

What is called superstition will flourish, for there may be signs and wonder linking the seen and unseen worlds. South-east will abound, but they should be avoided.

Remarkable discoveries in the field of medicine will be made known and will be employed successfully. The public health is to improve and at the same time deteriorate, for science will aid those who are prosperous and undernourished will destroy the indigent.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the anxiety of a year of success, although sinister stars may interfere with friendship and love affairs.

Children born on this day probably will be practical and clever. Subjects of this sign know how to use their brains successfully.

Robert Brackman, artist, was born on the 25th, 1888. He has been a successful painter of a birthday including William Shakespeare, and the artist, who painted Robert Hart Bradbury, chemist, 1870, and Abraham O. Werner, German geologist, 1780.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bridgen of Constance Avenue, Esquimalt, who will celebrate their golden wedding on Thursday, September 26, at the residence of their son, Mr. Charles Bridgen, Joseph Street, Victoria.

WHAT WOULD YOU THINK?

As an intelligent person what would be your reaction if you knew of friend after friend who, after being many years below par or miserable with chronic disease, had changed their living habits from the hap-hazard habits of civilization to habits along well-thought-out lines and became models of physical perfection and perfect health? Would you "poo-poo" it, make light of it? You could not and be intelligent, could you?

Well, if you live in a community where the "Health Through Natural Living Habits" is understood, where my books which teach it and my foods, Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy, Lishus and Kofy-Sub, which make it easy to live that philosophy, are known, you will easily find many such persons. Thousands upon thousands have come back to exuberant, exultant, exalted health through these means.

My books you may have to write to me to obtain, but Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy, Lishus and Kofy-Sub you can buy in your own grocery stores. Of all single means for building health these are without doubt the best. Write to me for my free better-health bulletins at 877 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont.

Air Stewardess

By Vida Hurst

Before she had a chance to warn him the other rough looking passenger in the rear had pushed the co-pilot down into his seat across from Irene's. She knew that, while the pilot carried a gun, Robert would be unarmed. The expression of utter bewilderment on his face would have been funny in less serious circumstances, as the man perched on the arm of his chair threatened, "You are to sit right here, see? One false move will be your last."

When there continued to be no response to his summons, the pilot's eyes appeared for a moment behind the peep hole in the cockpit. There was nothing to be seen except the stewardess and co-pilot sitting in the rear seats with a passenger perched on Robert's arm. But evidently the man in front decided his time had come. Rising quietly, he slipped into the cockpit, and although they had no means of seeing what went on, the two waiting in an agony of suspense felt the plane slowly swinging around, changing its course.

Some of the passengers noticed it, too, but by this time it was too late. The pilot had been disarmed, and the bandit appeared, brandishing a pistol in each hand. On his face was the snarling, vicious desperation of a rat fighting for his life.

"Keep your seats," he shouted above the roar of the plane. "The first one to move will be shot down like a dog. Stand up, Red, and keep your gun on them while I watch the pilot."

The man who looked like a gangster, and was one, stood up, and as the plane began to veer farther and farther from its course, Irene and the co-pilot stared at each other in despair. Where was Bruce taking them? Would he be permitted to land at a regular emergency field or compelled to come down in some forsaken place? Irene was not certain, but thought they were flying in the direction of Reno. As time went on they climbed higher and higher while the tops of the mountains appeared below with here and there a deserted plain.

Bruce was an experienced pilot but with a gun in his ribs, forced to obey orders by an ignorant desperado, a crack-up was not only possible but probable. Not one of the passengers realized the danger involved as much as those two in the rear of the plane, but undoubtedly each of them faced death in his own way during those long hours which seemed like years to the flying prisoners.

Irene was amazed at her own calmness. Frightened and apprehensive, she nevertheless became conscious of a slowly growing inner courage. It was the thought of Barney which gave this to her. She realized that in this crisis she was thinking in the pilot's terms, using many of Barney's own words.

"If we crash, we crash, darlin'. A short life but a merry one. Be brave, my sweet!"

To meet death gallantly as he would have met it as that which seemed to matter in that terrible moment. But how would Barney feel when he heard about it? Would he be sorry then that he had won her love only to mock at it? Would he say again, "Anyway, I've made you admit you liked it?"

Careless, cruel Barney! Darling, tender, Barney who had swept her into his arms and his heart on that very first day. Now that it might be almost over, she told herself she was glad she had had that, anyway. They were descending now. Going to land, just as she had feared, in a plain which seemed to be miles from every place.

Irene closed her eyes and prayed. "Oh, God, make it quick!" Then she realized that the plane was bumping roughly across the ground. Half the passengers started from their seats as the ship stopped.

"Sit down," bellowed the man in front. "Stay where you are and you won't get hurt. This is not a holdup, but the first one who don't obey orders won't live to talk about it."

Cowed, the passengers subsided. The fragile little old lady was the only one who dared reply.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourselves," she piped in a quavering voice. But no one else said anything. And as the noise from the motor died down, the silence from the cockpit became ominous.

Then, just as the suspense seemed unendurable, the pilot with two pistols at his back walked through the plane. Red watched while the other man bound his arms and strapped him to the small folding seat Irene used when the plane was full. Then, with ropes and straps quickly unpacked from a suitcase, all the other passengers were fastened in turn.

The man who had tried to be conversational with Irene earlier in the day asked meekly, "Are you the convict who escaped yesterday from San Quentin?"

"Shut up," snapped the gangster. A woman sitting next to Irene, dressed with a handkerchief, and satiated. She flopped limp as a rag doll above the straps which held her, but Irene could not go to her rescue any more than her husband, who was the pilot.

Suddenly the noise was broken by the noise of a car tearing up the road which passed the meadow.

Red asked, "Is that them?"

His companion nodded.

"All right, folks! So long! But if any of you manage to break those bonds, I'm telling you there's a machine gun in that car, and we won't hesitate to shoot anyone who tries to follow us."

With a final wave of the pistols he opened the door, and both men jumped to the ground and began running toward the waiting car. Long before they reached it, a buzz of protest rose from the helpless passengers. Men swore and straining muscles heaved, but the cords held. Veins stood out like cords on Bruce Boynton's face as he tried to pull himself loose.

"The devil used a trick knot," he said. "It will have to be cut."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

FAT CHILDREN MAY NOT BE HEALTHY—ONLY WRONGLY FED

The fat little girl whose waist line is like a cushion and whose soul yearns for slenderness needs to be considered. Fatness is not a true indication of health but, more surely, of an unbalanced diet which loads the tissues with water and stores fat in unnecessary amounts. Such children need an altered and improved diet just as do the children whose shoulder bones protrude like wings and whose abdomens are distended giving them the general posture of a figure 8.

Mrs. L. R. is worried about her eight-year-old daughter who is excessively fat. "What foods can I omit from her diet, without harming her in any way," she writes. "She had always been a very fat child, and now this is becoming a source of worry and humiliation to her. Can you help me?"

CUT STARCH, SUGAR, FAT

The foods which provide the essential food elements in the diet are milk, meat, eggs, cheese, nuts, whole grain cereals and breads, fruits and vegetables. A diet consisting of just such foods would not tend to load the system with fat, but would provide all the growth elements and protection from disease. If you would like our leaflet, "Diet from Five to Eight Years," I shall be happy to send it to you for only a self-addressed and stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Eldred care of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

Profanity can be eliminated. Choose, most generously green, watery vegetables, such as asparagus, green beans, peas, tomatoes, spinach, broccoli, rather than carrots, beets, squash, turnips, the starchy vegetables. Green beans and peas while somewhat starchy should be included because of their excellent protein content.

Fruits should serve as the chief sweets of the diet. Fruit juices with breakfast and fruit sauces for the night meal will provide the child with satisfaction for her sweet tooth. Such a diet offers no hardships, if all of the family eat alike, and the child will suffer no nutritional lacks but merely use up in vigorous exercise the excess and burdensome fat.

Louis and Baer In Colorful Ring Battle This Evening

Cunning Negro To Tackle Wild Swinging Maxie

THE SPORTS MIRROR

WILLIAM LAWSON LITTLE JR. was born to the purple of great golf. Little, amateur champion of both Great Britain and the United States for the second year in succession, and winner of thirty-one consecutive championship matches, first saw light at Glider Newport, R.I., where the United States amateur originated in 1905.

That was in 1911, the year that the brilliant Harold H. Hilton, whose father the twenty-five-year-old Stanford senior was destined to excel, prevailed in the amateur.

In sealing the heights, Little realized the most cherished ambition of a young golfer's father. Col. William Lawson Little, now in charge of the hospital at the Presidio of San Francisco, was an army surgeon stationed at Fort Adams, Newport, when his only child entered the world. He shot in the low 70s, and dreamt of his son becoming a renowned representative of the royal and ancient game he loved so well.

Golf was a society sport when the first United States Amateur was played at Newport. It was the pastime of the rich, associated with caviar, polo, and yachts. It did not become widespread in the United States until the amateur was democratized and taken to Chicago in 1897.

There is an erroneous impression that Little is something of a throwback to the high hat period of golf. The superior Stanford student gives galleries that impression, whereas as a matter of fact the handsome match play king is a splendid mixer who is exceptionally popular among his intimates.

"People don't appreciate the load a favorite carries in a big tournament," explains Little. "It isn't my nature to wave to friends in the gallery, just with strangers, and wear a smile as Chick Evans does. If I don't concentrate intensely, I can't hit my shots. When I scowl it means that I'm sore at myself—not at my opponent. A missed shot burns me up, but I never brood over defeat if I have played good golf."

There are tales about Little learning the game among the decaying tombs of an ancient Chinese cemetery. The truth is that Lawson played just one round during the twelve months that his father was stationed at Tientsin in 1921 and '22.

Little learned golf in several states as his father was transferred from post to post. Lawson, who took up the game when he was nine, really started to play seriously in Texas, and kept on swinging clubs through North Dakota, Oklahoma, southern Georgia, Wyoming, Washington, Oregon, and California.

Little's game really was developed over the beautiful layout of the fashionable Waverly Country Club, of Portland, Ore., while his father was stationed at Vancouver, Wash. Barracks, across the Columbia River.

Lawson credits Mel Smith, a professional now of Chicago but then attached to the Waverly club, with having started him off on the right foot. Professionals who have aided him since are Larry Brazil, of the Presidio course of San Francisco, and the illustrious Tommy Armour, whom he considers the foremost instructor in the business.

While playing Waverly, Dr. O. P. Willing, former Waverly Cup star, helped Little work out the putting style that is so peculiarly his own. Lawson is the first long hitter in the memory of graybeards who also is superlative on the greens.

Little was first heard of when he qualified for and was beaten by Chick Evans, 9 and 3, in the first round of the Western Amateur at the Seattle Golf Club in 1927.

Johnny Dreher, veteran Seattle golfer, recalls how happy Colonel Little was when his seventeen-year-old son took the noted Chicagoan to the sixteenth hole.

That kid's going to be our greatest. (Turn to Page 10, Col 1)

Close to 95,000 Will See What Promises to Be Greatest Fight in Years

BROADCAST WILL START AT 6 P.M.

By ALAN GOULD

New York, Sept. 24.—The roar of the mightiest crowd that has been lured to the ringside by the fight ballyhoo in eight years signals the return of pugilistic prosperity to-night in the vast open spaces of the Yankee Stadium.

The stadium furnishes the setting for a fistie fantasy unknown since Tex Rickard died and unsuspected until a twenty-one-year-old negro took the country by storm with his knockout punch.

It is one of the most amazing things in sports, no matter what the outcome this evening as Joe Louis, the chocolate soldier with the devastating fists, meets the come-back challenge of the wild-swinging, emotionally-furious Max Baer, former world heavyweight champion.

The fight will be broadcast over NBC and CBC networks, starting at 6 o'clock (Victoria time). It is a million-dollar show, surrounded by such furious debate and such extraordinary demand for tickets at any price that the great Rickard, if he had lived through the depression years of boxing, would have looked on in wonderment and remarked characteristically, "I've never seen nothing" like it.

The box-office reports forecast a probable sellout or the nearest thing to it in fight history. The weather man forecast "fair and warmer to-night," with nothing for promoter Mike Jacobs to worry about except the ultimate job of matching the winner with James J. Braddock for the world heavyweight championship in 1936.

A capacity crowd means close to 95,000 spectators and an aggregate "gate" of $1,184,890, more than twice as much money as any prize fight has drawn in five years and a mark surpassed only slightly by the memorable Firpo-Dempsey battle of 1923.

Baer and Louis are assured close to $300,000 each as their share of to-night's spoils, but victory will mean perhaps $500,000 more within the next year, including a shot at the heavyweight crown.

Whether Louis flattens Baer as he has most of two dozen previous professional opponents or whether the Californian blasts the resistance of the youthful negro, the fight figures to be a highly dramatic, dynamic duel.

The best guess is that the fight will last not more than six or seven rounds. Baer's main hopes rest in an early onslaught that will overpower the negro, weaken his defence and provide the opening for a finishing attack.

The Californian has made no secret of this battle plan. Baer has not the speed, the stamina or the boxing ability to cope with Joe in a drawn-out engagement.

The negro's chances, if he weathers the opening blast, should increase with the bell for each succeeding round. Louis is a methodical fighter, who likes to size up an opponent thoroughly before letting loose. When he strikes, however, he shoots to kill.

Livermore, Calif., Sept. 24.—Win, lose or draw, Max Baer's home town is getting more and more excited every minute to-night over its curly-headed son's fight-to-night with Joe Louis.

The citizenry had good cause to be excited, too, for some $12,000 is up on Baer "to win." That figure is out about $3.50 for every man, woman and child in this cattle and farming community.

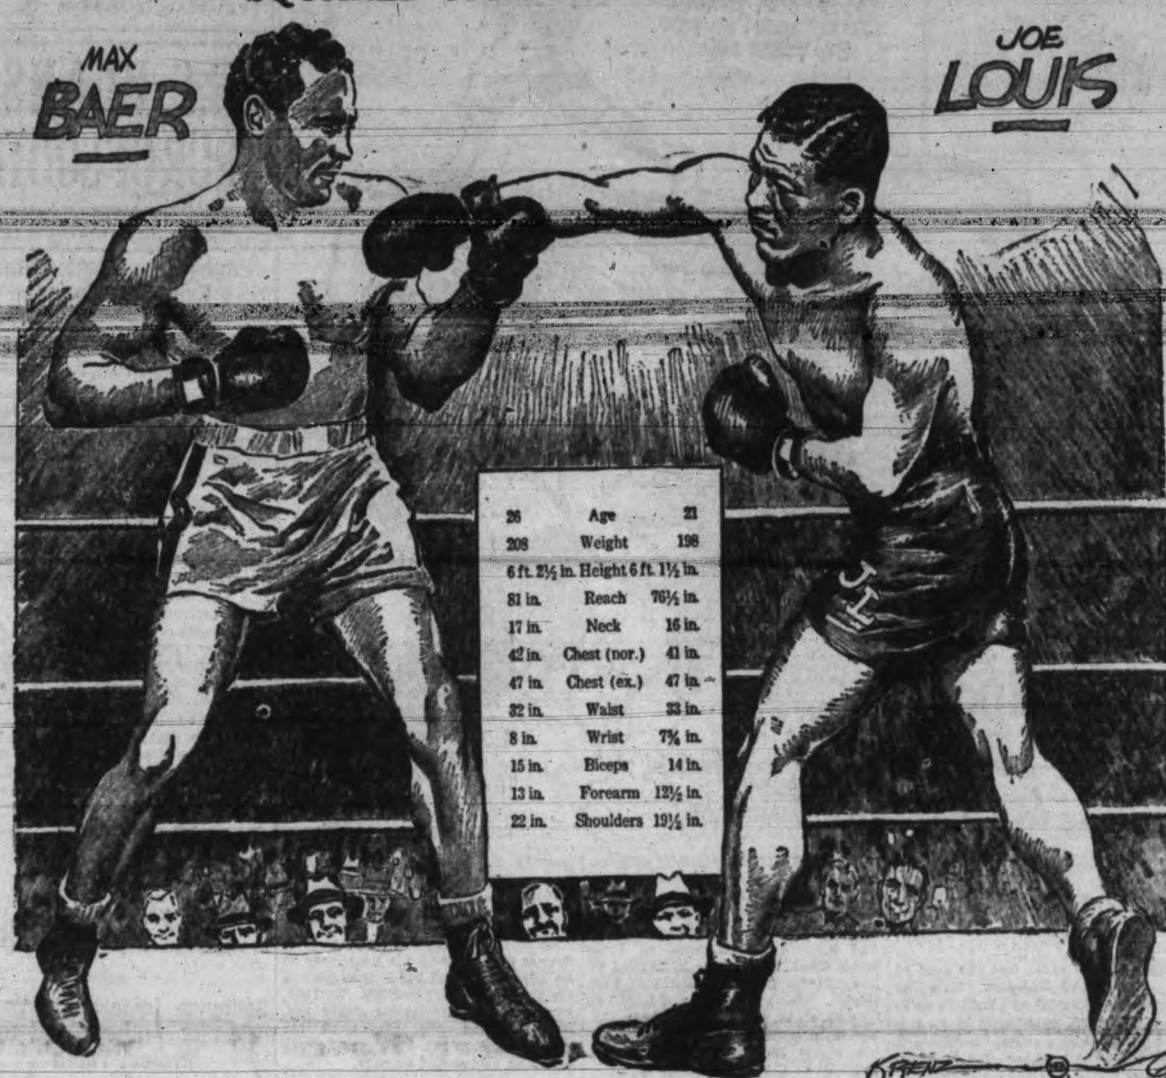

Baer, a former butcher boy, started his ring career here six years ago, punching a swinging wheat bag in training quarters remodelled from a chicken-coop.

Everybody that isn't working—and a few will be during the fight—plans to gather around loudspeakers and hear the blows fall.

CO-OPERATION SOUGHT HERE

Eastern States and Provinces to Organize Association Similar to Coast Body

Colonel G. F. C. Poussette, executive-secretary for the Tourist and Convention Bureau of Winnipeg and Manitoba, with a view to forming a sectional international tourist travel promotion organization, similar to the Evergreen Playground Association, has written to the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureaus, asking for information regarding the Pacific Coast Association.

Colonel Poussette, president of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus, announced that the new organization will be formed on October 7. It will include cities on both sides of the international border, in the states of Minnesota and North Dakota, and in the province of Manitoba, thus joining Winnipeg, St. Paul, Minneapolis and large Dakota cities in a united advertising campaign for tourist business originating on the Gulf of Mexico and South Central States and northwest.

Mayor David Leeming, president of the Evergreen Playground, feels gratified that other portions of the country are setting up like organizations, due to the Coast body's success.

Arky walloped three hits in four times up to send his mark back to 308, while his St. Louis rival, Joe Medwick, made four fruitless trips to the plate for a two-point drop to 354.

Buddy Myer, the only other active member, also lost two points, going up three times without a hit.

BIG STORM IS LAST WINNER

Local Horse Cops Marathon at Willows; Big Pine Suffers Defeat

In a driving three-horse finish, "Blackie" Kinman's Genevieve M., a five-year-old mare which he claimed two weeks ago, captured the Empress Handicap, the closing feature of the two weeks' racing at the Willows yesterday. Under a keen ride by Jockey Young, she snatched a nose decision from Bert Ferris's Evidently, with Frank Behar's Big Pine third.

The co-feature at two miles and thirty yards went to Big Storm, the ace runner of A. Sturrock's Wentworth Stable. Daredevil got the place and Primrose Day the show.

Don Carley acquired the fine Western-bred Edison via the claiming route for $400.

Timmy Sena wound up the season in a blaze of glory by riding three winners, two seconds and a third, but he missed by one winner a tie with Jockey Dubois as the leading rider of the season.

Chicago Has Nine Fingers On Flag

Cubs Are Moved Right to Front Door of National Baseball League Throne Room as St. Louis Cardinals Walloped 12 to 0 By Pittsburgh

When Chas. Grimm, manager of the Chicago Cubs, traded big Jim Weaver to Pittsburgh last winter he probably did not have it figured out that the oversize right-hander would be the one to pitch Chicago into the National Baseball League pennant, but that seems to be what has happened.

Weaver did that stunt yesterday when he blanked the challenging St. Louis Cardinals with four hits and 12 to 0 victory over the 1934 world champions. That came as near as possible to tossing the pennant right into the Cubs' laps, for the only way St. Louis can win the flag outright now is to trim Chicago five games straight in their final series which starts tomorrow.

The Cardinal defeat, while Cubs enjoyed the first of two days of idleness following their eighteen-game winning streak, put the Cards three and one-half games behind Chicago. Provided they beat the Pirates to-day, the Cardinals can gain a tie for the flag by beating the Cubs four out of five. If they lose to Pittsburgh it will eliminate the possibility of a tie and require five straight or nothing.

While Weaver was subduing the Cards in brilliant fashion, the Buccaners, led by Floyd "Pep" Young, rattled a quintette of Cardinal fingers for sixteen hits.

The third-place New York Giants, meanwhile, lost their outside chance of tying Chicago, but retained the possibility that they might beat out St. Louis for second place. The Terrymen split a twin bill with the Boston Braves, winning the opener 3 to 2 as Carl Hubbell edged out Ed Brandt in a mound duel, but taking a 9 to 7 setback when Frank Gabler and Roy Parmelee proved ineffective.

Brooklyn held sixth place safe from the Phillies by pounding Jim Bivin and Orville Jorgens for an eight-run seventh inning to win the second half of a doubleheader 8 to 4 after Johnny Moore's tenth-inning homer gave the Phils the opener, 4 to 2.

The only American League game was the New York Yankees extend their winning streak to five straight with a 5 to 1 victory over the Washington Senators. While Lefty Gomez pitched seven-hit ball, the Yanks pounded Earl Whitehill for five straight blows, the first three doubles, and scored four runs in the fourth to top up the game.

All other major league teams were idle.

MONTREAL BEATEN
Montreal, Sept. 24.—George Hockett hurled four-hit ball and Syracuse Chiefs yesterday won the Governors' Cup and the play-offs of the International League, defeating the pennant-winning Montreal Royals, 2 to 1, in the seventh game, for four victories to three.

The brilliant southpaw showed perfect control. He had no strikeouts, issued one walk and had the Royals grounding or popping harmlessly all afternoon.

Harry Taylor hammered a home run for the Chiefs over the scoreboard in the sixth, to tie the game after the Royals had led from the fourth. In the ninth "Spook" Tupperer doubled off the scoreboard and Tucker's single brought the former home for the winning run.

Flashes From Fight Front

New York boiled Monday night with fight fever.

Eighteen-year-old Marva Trotter, a bundle of light tan pugnacity from Chicago's south side, was "nervous as a kitten" on the eve of her marriage to the hope of the darkies, Marva and Joe will be wed some time Tuesday evening, "maybe before, maybe after the fight."

Times square seethed with pleasure seekers. Theatres were as crowded as the night clubs and "highball havens." A little old newspaper hawkler smiled through his weariness and said, "I've heard it told there was a depression."

An enterprising hotel manager promised to supply every guest with opera glasses for the fight. The place was clocked with 2,500 guests.

Harlem's largest department store did riproaring trade in plaster casts of Louis.

A London cable said the affair shares the headlines there with the other "mixed" affair, the Italian-Ethiopian crisis. From New York, famed Tom Webster reported to The Daily Mail, "Louis is the best short puncher I've seen since a bus conductor."

Officials of the three airlines operating between Chicago and New York ordered nearly a dozen extra flights for Tuesday, for the convenience of fight fans.

THREE SOCCER GAMES BILLED

Wednesday Football League Opens Season To-morrow; Double-header Carded

With six clubs participating in the 1935-36 campaign, Wednesday Football League clubs will commence their season's play to-morrow with three fixtures scheduled. A double header will be played at the Athletic Park and one at Admirals Road.

The draws follow:
Spencers vs. Saanich United at the Athletic Park at 2:30 o'clock. Referee, Al McKinnon.

James Bay Wanderers vs. Kregas at the Athletic Park at 4 o'clock. Referee, Dave McMillan.

Hudson's Bay vs. Navy at Admirals Road at 2:30 o'clock. Referee A. Johnson.

At a meeting of the officials of the league yesterday evening in the Colonist boardroom, it was announced that the Bayward Cup will again be up for play, with a ten-game schedule, calling for home-and-home games. At the finish of the schedule the club with the largest number of points will gain possession of the trophy until the following season. Hudson's Bay won the cup last year.

Saanich United was entered at yesterday evening's meeting to make up an even six clubs in the league.

Club managers turned down an offer to meet the British Columbia Football Commission to discuss affiliation with the provincial body. Club managers have decided to operate as an independent league, and delegates could see no reason for a change, as this system has been successful for many seasons.

Kregas' team will be as follows: Stipe, Mackenzie, Crowe, Hill, J. Chapman, A. McBride, McAllister, M. McBride, Duncan, McAllister, Obee and Hall. Players to meet at 2:30 o'clock at Athletic Park.

The Fifth Brigade intermediate rugby team will hold the first of their season's workouts to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock at the Athletic Park. Coach John Baxter urges all former players and any others interested to attend.

MESSANGER BOY FINDS FORTUNE

Youth From Family on Relief in New York Finds and Returns Negotiable Bonds Worth $150,000, But Has Received No Reward As Yet

Associated Press
New York, Sept. 24.—A twenty-two-year-old messenger boy makes $3.15 a week running errands for a coffee shop, found and returned a lost packet of $150,000 worth of negotiable bonds yesterday.

The securities, ten $15,000 federal farm mortgage bonds, were described as "almost as negotiable as cash." He had been lost on a street in the financial section by a messenger for C. F. Childs and Company, No. 1 Wall Street.

As noonday throngs scuffed the insignificant-looking packet under foot and into the gutter, Albert Gorrell, twenty-two, passed by on an errand for the coffee shop.

He picked up the envelope bound with a rubber band and looked inside. He kept right on, completed the errand on which he had been sent, and then took the bonds back to his employer, Allen Doyle, who notified Childs and Company.

SPECULATE ON REWARD
To-day, Gorrell, whose family is on home relief, wondered whether he would receive any reward. He was congratulated by many persons, but had received no definite offer of a job with a higher wage. He hastened to say he had returned the bonds only because he was honest and with no immediate thought of possible reward.

He lives with his father, mother and three brothers in Brooklyn. He spent one year at Columbia University, he said, but had been out of work for a year until he got his present job a month ago.

The bonds had been lost by John O'Brien, fifty, a messenger, and William Rice, sixty, a guard, who carried them from the Child office to deliver them at the New York Trust and

Y.M.C.A. NOTES
The senior business men's class, with fifteen in attendance, was put through its paces last evening on the Y.M.C.A. floor, under the direction of Coach Archie McKinnon. It was the first work-out of the season for this group, and if the enthusiasm which was displayed last night continues throughout the season the attendance should greatly increase.

The class was put through a lively routine of calisthenics, stressing abdominal work, and topped off with a peppy round of volleyball. The following attended the class: E. Harrison, R. Cruickshank, P. Harding, R. N. Harris, R. McBeath, F. Paulding, C. Pope, W. Revercombe, A. J. Sommers, P. T. Stern, E. W. Whittington, T. W. G. Woods and G. Fraser. NO CITIZENSHIP FOR CHEON YET

Application By Master Chef at Government House Is Held Up

Cheon Chung, master chef at Government House for the last eighteen years, cannot become a Canadian citizen yet.

Cheon raised the question of an Oriental becoming a Canadian when he applied for citizenship before Judge Lampman a short time ago. For years no member of the yellow race has been naturalized, but Cheon's application was forwarded to Ottawa.

Due to the apparent lack of a Minister of Interior in China at the present time, Cheon's hope of becoming a Canadian subject will be delayed.

Announcement was made in Ottawa yesterday that application was received by the Naturalization Department.

Chinese applies for naturalization in this country, consent of the Chinese Minister of Interior to renunciation of citizenship by the Oriental must be given, and there appears to be no Chinese Minister of Interior at the present time.

Cheon has cooked for four different governments during his reign in the kitchen at Government House. His work has been praised by royalty, and due to his eminence in his profession and the fact that he can speak English fluently, his case for Canadian citizenship was considered strong.

Newspapermen Show The Way

Reporters of The Times and The Colonist Top Class in General Knowledge and Spelling Contest at Kiwanis Club

Kiwanians who had any doubts as to the educational value of a newspaper office training were swiftly disillusioned as their luncheon in the Empress Hotel ballroom to-day.

The two press representatives present at the luncheon scored a victory in a general knowledge and spelling contest staged by Rowan Mackenzie, president of the club, and continued neck and neck so long after the other contestants had dropped out that Mr. Mackenzie could think of no more hard words to spell and had to settle the contest by the flip of a coin.

George Bonavia, curly-haired reporter of The Colonist, won the toss from Pete Inglis, The Times's six-foot-five representative, and was presented with a small mechanical humming top.

Frank Paulding, inspired by the good wishes he received to-day on the occasion of his birthday, came third, but fell out when he was unable to spell piebald.

Mr. Bonavia was later seen on his knees on the ballroom carpet of the Empress Hotel happily trying out his new toy.

Funeral To-morrow Of C.P.R. Pioneer

Funeral services for Francis William Vincent of Erie Street, who passed away Sunday at the Jubilee Hospital, will be held to-morrow afternoon, the cortege leaving Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 1:45 o'clock and proceeding to Christ Church Cathedral, where services will be conducted at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Mr. Vincent was born in Newcastle-on-Tyne in England in 1851. He was the son of Capt. Robert Vincent, R.N.R. When only eighteen years of age, he entered a shipping office in Koenigsberg, Germany, where he remained for five years. He was a resident of Germany during the hectic days of the Franco-Prussian War.

Coming to America in 1874, Mr. Vincent resided in Iowa for a time and then proceeded to San Francisco and entered the shipping office of Whitelaw & Co. there.

In 1876, he came to Victoria and for a time was engaged in the customs service here. Then going to New Westminster, he entered the service of the Pioneer-Praser River Steamship Co., becoming agent for the company at Yale, which was the head of navigation for the company on the Fraser River run.

He returned to Victoria in 1883, when he took charge of the C.P.R. offices here, and subsequently became auditor with the C.P.R. here, retiring in 1919 after fifty-nine years with the two companies.

Teachers Hear Educationists

Visitors From England Guests at Empress Hotel Meeting

The twelve British educationists touring Canada were guests of the Victoria and District Teachers' Association yesterday afternoon at a tea in the lower lounge of the Empress Hotel, attended by 175 persons. Miss M. N. McKillop, president, extended greetings to the visitors. She was assisted in the conduct of the affair by Miss Frances T. Brown, secretary. Presiding at the table were Mrs. K. Ford, Miss Oliver Heritage, Miss Annie M. Patterson and Miss Isla Tuck.

Dr. S. J. Willis, superintendent of Education for B.C., introduced D. H. Anderson, inspector of schools for the counties of Renfrew and Argyll, Scotland, and Major Fred J. McV, organizer of the Overseas Education League. He referred to the delegates as "the twelve apostles."

The dragooning and regimentation of years ago in the schools of Scotland had now been replaced by a freedom of atmosphere, Mr. Anderson said. Scotland had also greatly improved her standard of school equipment and had become more up-to-date with its desks and boards. Scottish teachers as well as inspectors now worked on the policy of encouraging to the child and making him feel at ease, speaking kind words that are important in molding the child's character and directing his life. Scottish teachers are firm, but no longer harsh.

Mr. Anderson said the objectives sought in the schools of Scotland had been arranged in this order by one teacher: formation of character first and the "provision of information" last. Second in the list had been the development of the child's physique; third, intelligence, the development of understanding, the mind trained, not merely stuffed with facts; fourth, manners, speech, deportment, all of primary importance, yet too often missed in the child's training.

Mr. Anderson emphasized the fact that information was placed last on the list, instead of being put first as it too often is, and made head-and-heel. "The ideal teacher," he said with Stephen Leacock, should be able to kindle and keep in the pupil's heart a determination to make of himself something that counted with mental power and moral worth. Wise teachers now sought to be encouraging, firm, but no longer harsh.

Mr. Anderson said the application of routine curriculum as found by the party in Canada, Mr. Anderson told of a school in a Ukrainian settlement in the Canadian west where the children were being given three French classes a week. He said one could not help but feel that these pupils could have been much more profitably employed, particularly as a very small number would every reach the university.

Mr. Anderson quoted a pupil "howler" as follows: "Christianity was introduced into England by Julius Caesar in 54 B.C." He also quoted a parent "howler" in the note from a Scottish parent to the teacher as follows: "Please send Johnny to the clinic with his face. He has had it a long time and it seems to be spreading."

Major Mey expressed appreciation of the hospitality of the Victoria teachers. Members of the party with Mr. Anderson were Dr. J. E. Smart (director of education for Acton, London), Thomas B. Tilley (director of education for Durham), J. A. Peart (director of education for Winchester), T. J. Rees (director of education for Swansea), W. A. F. Hepburn (director of education for Ayrshire), and W. A. Brookington (director of education for Leicestershire).

Goods, consisting chiefly of clothing, valued at $500, were stolen by thieves who ransacked "Peers" General Store at Armstrong, on Sunday night, according to radio advice received to-day at Provincial Police headquarters here. The haul included shoes, coats, coats, gloves, ties, shirts, belt buckles, hats, watch chains and watch fobs.

CANADA SMALL FISH CONSUMER

Deputy-Commissioner Appeals to Kiwanis For Rise in Consumption

"There is great room for expansion in Canada's consumption of fish. By eating more fish you will help yourself to health and your province to prosperity," C. J. Alexander, deputy commissioner of fisheries, told the members of the Kiwanis Club at their luncheon to-day, in the course of an address on the fisheries of British Columbia.

Canada's per capita yearly consumption of fish, he stated, was seven kilograms, against twenty-nine in Japan, twenty in Great Britain and eight in Germany.

Mr. Alexander appealed for support for Fish Week next week at the conclusion of the luncheon, and then traced the history of the world's fisheries and of British Columbia's sea food industry, fourth ranking of its great resources.

Interesting facts revealed by the speaker were that the salmon found in Pacific waters are not true salmon at all, but belong to various classes of species of fish peculiar to the Western Ocean; that the vast majority of salmon can have nothing to do with the preservation of the fish, and that the food being done by the cooking, and that 100 years ago salmon were being exported from the Fraser River to Asia by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Mr. Alexander referred to the importance of fisheries in the history of the world, pointing out that all the great civilizations had been cradled on the sea shore, that modern fleets were derived from the first fishing vessels and that many wars and disputes in the world's history had their origin in discussion over fishing rights.

HISTORY OF INDUSTRY

Tracing the history of British Columbia's salmon industry, which represents over 75 per cent of the total fish produce of the province, he stated that before the advent of the white man the coast Indians were already trading dried salmon with the Interior tribes.

In 1835 the Hudson's Bay Company sailed large quantities of salmon for export on the Fraser River, and a few years later acquired a monopoly of fishing on that waterway. The first cannery in British Columbia was started near New Westminster in 1870. In those days all the work, including the making of cans, was done by hand, and the produce was shipped in all around Cape Horn.

Mr. Alexander described the various habits of the five types of British Columbia salmon, Spring, Sockeye, Coho, Pink, and Chum, and the different circumstances under which each was caught.

Pointing out the extent of British Columbia's fisheries trade, he stated that in the peak year of 1924 it was valued at $27,000,000, sinking to $9,000,000 in 1925, and rising again to $16,000,000 last year, with the prospect of a higher figure for 1935.

"Who is Behind Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin?" "How will the British peoples win out in economics, government and in Armageddon?" "Where does Social Credit enter into the coming situation?" "Will Russia and Germany strike when Italy has lured the British strength into the Mediterranean?"

Dr. Davies was greeted with more than 1,000 auditors at his opening lecture last Wednesday and seats were at a premium. Extra seats were placed on the platform.

MARKET NOTES

The first car of oranges to travel by rail from California to Victoria since the refusal of longshoremen in Los Angeles to load produce for British Columbia ports was received on wholesale row yesterday.

The price of these oranges will not be affected by the more expensive means of travel, according to advice from the distributing centre.

The orange market has just hit a soft spot, and if the oranges had traveled by boat instead of rail they would have been cheaper.

How long the blockade on Canadian-bound produce from California ports will continue was unknown.

A car of Alameda potatoes was received on wholesale row yesterday.

A shipment of British Columbia Concord grapes was unloaded yesterday.

Half a car of bananas arrived in Victoria to-day.

A small shipment of Yakima peaches was on yesterday's arrival list. Another shipment of the same size is expected to-morrow.

There is no change in the butter or egg prices but both markets continue firm.

LAST RITES WEDNESDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet Dupen, who died suddenly at her home, Surrey Block, Yates Street, on Friday, will be conducted to-morrow afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, in the Sands Mortuary Chapel. Dr. Clem Davies will officiate and the remains will be laid to rest in Ross Bay Cemetery.

WAIRUNA CREW IS DETAINED

Vancouver, Sept. 24.—Twenty-five deckhands and firemen of the S.S. Wairuna of the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand were held to-day in the Immigration Building here after having walked off the vessel, refusing to take her to sea.

Officials claim the crew is within its rights in refusing to go to sea while short-handed, but has no right to come ashore. It is short-handed because one member is in hospital here. If he cannot rejoin the vessel his place will be taken by someone satisfactory to the unionized crew.

King Renews His Pledge Against Railway Merger

Mr. Bennett has opened the door

now so that it looks as if the whole thing was being stepped up for amalgamation," said Mr. King.

The Economic Council would be appointed by Mr. Bennett. It would make a report in harmony with Mr.

Bennett's views if he was returned to power. A national government movement had been started with a view to getting a government which would bring about amalgamation. The only sure way to defeat the amalgamation movement was to return a substantial Liberal majority in Parliament, said Mr. King.

MEASURES POSTPONED

Mr. King declared that every measure the Bennett government adopted which might have been of some help in the last three or four years was postponed until the eve of the election.

The Wheat Board Act had the support of the House of Commons. He Commons, he told his western audience and was not a government achievement. Had it not been for the efforts of the Liberal members of the House, the fixed minimum price would not have been included in the bill. But it was a couple of years late and the wheat growers should have been satisfied.

Canada's wheat should have been sold as it was produced and the growers should have been given a fair price. With the government bearing any loss, the farmers were as much entitled to state assistance in time of economic stress as the unemployed.

Had this been done there would not have been a huge stock of wheat in Canada to-day, and the price would now be much higher, with a keen demand arising.

TRADE WITH U.S.

Reciprocity with the United States was another example of delay. Had the government wished it could have made a treaty at any time in the last two years, but it had held off, hoping to win some credit at election time.

On the question of debt adjustment and interest rate reduction, Mr. King said the only way to proceed was by a conference of the federal and provincial governments and agreement between them on a definite plan. The Liberal party was keenly aware of the hardship of debts contracted at a time when prices were high, bearing down on debtors when prices were low.

"The whole condition of a lot of our social legislation is so confused that no one knows what is founded and what is not," he said.

"On these questions of contracts and interest rates the constitution has assigned some powers to the provinces and some to the Dominion."

COULD REMOVE DIFFICULTIES

If provinces and Dominion got together and agreed on a plan, and every government was anxious to help people who were in debt, constitutional difficulties "could be got rid of in ten minutes." The government could enact complementary legislation and agree on amendments to the constitution where there were necessary.

Never had a better opportunity presented itself for co-operation between provinces and Dominion than would be presented if a Liberal government were elected for the Dominion. Eight of the nine provinces had Liberal governments and the government of the province of Alberta was sympathetic to the common aim of reducing the

Prices Move Higher On Wall Street List With Firmer Tone

New York, Sept. 24.—The stock market edged quietly higher for the second successive session today, as Wall Street was a little more hopeful of a compromise of the Ethiopian dispute, and found trade news bright.

Traders were still cautious pending more definite news from Geneva, but there was sufficient buying to push much of the list up from fractions to more than a point. The turnover was only about 1,000,000 shares, but the late tone was firm.

Utilities joined the advance, as Wall Street was encouraged by recent power consumption reports and the initial moves by the secretary in connection with administration of the Wheeler-Burnett Act. Commodities were mostly dull, but rubber sprang on reduction of export quotas by the international committee in London.

Foreign exchange dealings were marked by an improved demand for sterling.

Non-ferrous metals shares were helped by the statement of an official of American smelting that directors might consider putting it on a dividend basis. Allied Chemical was a dividend specialty, up more than 4 points. Eastman American Woolen preferred, Wilson Preferred, and Thatcher Mfg. jumped a couple of points, and issues up major fractions to more than a point included Chrysler National Biscuit, Case, Briggs, American Telephone, Radio Preferred, B. American Power and Light Preferred, United Corp., Preferred, North American, Montgomery Ward, American Smelting, U.S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Kennecott and others.

Coal Wage Gap Unbridged

Ten increase in pay for men who dig and load coal.

Edward P. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, had reported the operators would agree to a 7 1/2-cent boost.

"LAST WORD"
Referring to the nine-cent union offer as the union's "last word"—all other points at issue had been settled—Lewis said the special sub-committee of two miners and two operators was still engaged in a "thumb-twiddling talk."

"As far as we are concerned, they can take it or leave it," Lewis said. "These mutual admiration sessions are beginning to wear out as far as we were concerned."

The negotiations were in the hands of a sub-committee including Charles O'Connell, Central Pennsylvania operator; L. T. Putman, Southern West Virginia producer; Philip Murray, vice-president of the United Mine Workers, and Van Bitter, Southern West Virginia district president of the union.

IN WASHINGTON
Associated Press
Seattle, Sept. 24.—Called out yesterday in the nation-wide soft coal strike, pending an agreement in the east coast Appalachian Mountains field, Washington's 2,500 United Mine Workers' members were in holiday again today with operators and union leaders hopeful of a settlement soon.

Seattle, Tacoma, Ellensburg and Bellingham mines areas were quiet, with mines manned only by skeleton maintenance crews.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a woman of twenty-seven, married six years to a man who is one of the best. We live with my widowed mother, who has a large country home and she has established my husband and me in a little business of our own.

It is what I have always wanted and I adore it and I should be happy, but I am not. I am so miserable I wish I could die. I hear so much of the depression, sickness and death I don't think it is worth while living. A friend of mine dropped dead the other day. Another one who has always been healthy and strong is dying gradually. Our rivals in business are trying to discourage us in our new venture. The younger generation hasn't a chance. Even rich people are not satisfied. Life is just one struggle after another. When I am tired, something inside of me keeps whispering to quiet down. I am afraid to laugh because I know I will make up for it with tears. Is something wrong with me, or is the world all wrong? UNHAPPY.

Answer—The trouble with you is that you are afflicted with about the worst case of self-pity I have ever encountered, and that is just about as dangerous an ailment as anybody can have. If you let it run on, it will not only eat at the joy in life for you, but it will shorten your days, for it has been conclusively proved time and again that the power of the nerves over the body is almost infinite and that just as there is no tonic that braces us up like hope and cheerfulness, so there is no poison that is more deadly than gloom and despair.

So if you want to live, snap out of your depression. Wake up from your nightmare. Quit doting yourself up on your own tears. Be a little ray of sunshine instead of a wet blanket. Take what Stevenson called "a short rest" and then get on with your life. You are a woman and a mother before it.

Of course, there is plenty of trouble in the world, but there is just as much joy. There is just as much sunshine as rain. Just as many things to laugh over as there are to cry over. There is sickness and sorrow and death, but most of the people we know are well and hardy and a long way from the cemetery. Why not give the live wires, the well and strong, a thought instead of concentrating your attention on the moribund and the crippled and the melancholy?

Nothing is truer than that what we go out to seek we find. If we hunt for trouble, we discover it on our own doorstep. If we are always looking for something to worry over, it is right down our alley. There isn't anybody alive so healthy that they can't find some sort of ache or pain or symptom if they sit down and explore their systems. There isn't anybody who can't find some fault in their husbands or wives, or who gets all of the love and appreciation they desire, or who isn't apprehensive about the future in some way.

Oh, you can always find plenty to gloom about if you are bent on making yourself miserable. But you can always find plenty to be cheerful about if you will go on a still-hunt for happiness and are determined to grab it. You can look on the bright side just as well as on the dark side. You can learn to laugh things off instead of making tragedies of them. You can make the best of people and of things. You can even put your heartbreaks behind you and go on with a smile on your face so that you will not make life sadder for other people.

It is only the cowards who whine and howl and complain over every cloud in their skies. The brave go on singing through the rain, thanking God for whatever blessings they have.

In these hard times it seems to me that a woman who has a good husband, a good home, a mother willing and able to help her and who yet complains about being unhappy should be ashamed to look at her face in the mirror.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—We are several fourteen-year-old girls and we want to know why our mothers will not permit us to correspond with boys. We know a girl who had been writing to a boy and when her mother found it out she took all the letters and would not let her write to him any more.

JUST US.

The reason that mothers object to their daughters corresponding with boys is because they are trying to keep them from doing something they are sure to be sorry for. If Mother could be certain that you would write to Tom, Dick or Harry about nothing except the state of the weather and the baseball games and the crowd you met at the soda fountain, she would not object.

But Mother has been a girl herself and she knows that a pen in a girl's hand is just as dangerous as a loaded pistol—that it is pretty sure to go off and explode, and there is too much danger of its wrecking a young life for her to be permitted to play with it.

Mother knows that a girl makes herself cheap when she writes to a boy before he writes to her and when she writes him half-a-dozen letters to his one, and she doesn't want her little girl to do that. Mother knows that a girl will write things to a boy that she would never say to him in the world; that she will tell him that she loves him and can't live without him, when she really doesn't care for him at all. Only a girl writes it because she has to have something to fill up the blank pages with, and it looks grand and romantic and passionate on paper, and Mother doesn't want her daughter to throw herself at a boy's head, or for her father to have to buy back, as many fathers do, foolish girls' indiscreet letters.

And Mother knows that boys show the letters girls write them around to prove what sheiks they are with the girls, and she doesn't want her daughter to be subjected to the humiliation of being jeered at by other boys and girls.

So Mother is quite right when she tries to keep her fourteen-year-old daughter from corresponding with boys. It is one thing to say a thing, and another to put it down in black and white. A great first one boasted that, no matter what she might have said to men, no man had ever had a scrap of her handwriting. That is a good tip for all girls.

DOROTHY DIX.

Uncle Wiggily Finds a Penny

By HOWARD R. GARIS

When the Bob Cat with his silly little tail no larger than a baby's thumb awakened in his den one morning, he was hungry. When the Fox, with his fuzzy tail, as large as a dusting brush, awakened in his cave one morning, he was hungry. When the Wolf, whose tail wasn't quite so large as the tail of the Fox, awakened in his den one morning, the Wolf was hungry.

But there was nothing to eat in any of the dens of the three Bad Chaps. "I'll go see Bobbie," growled the Wolf. "He may have something to eat in his den." And the Fox, like a cat, he went to himself.

"I'll go see Bobbie. He may have something to eat in his den even if he has a silly little tail no bigger than a baby's thumb."

So the Fox and the Wolf, both very hungry, went to call on the Bob Cat. But when they got there, his cupboard was bare, like Mother Hubbard's, and the Bob Cat was also hungry.

"I was just going to see if either of you chaps had anything to eat," meowed the Bob Cat.

EASIER SAID THAN DONE.

"No use going to my den," said the Fox. "No use going to my den," said the Wolf.

"What are we to do?" asked the Bob Cat.

"Oh! Uncle Wiggily!" snarled the Fox and Wolf together like twins, though, of course, they weren't.

"That's easier said than done," said the Bob Cat.

This was very true. Often and often the three Bad Chaps had tried to catch the rabbit gentleman, but always he had gotten away from them by fooling them in some way.

"But perhaps he may not fool us this time," said the Fox. "Let's go to the woods where he hops after adventures. We may catch him."

"All right, let's go!" said the Wolf and the Bob Cat. For the three Bad Chaps snarled to the woods.

Now, as it happened, Uncle Wiggily was in the woods then thinking for an adventure. He hopped here and he hopped there and he hopped around the tree, but no adventure could be found. Just then, all of a sudden, an adventure found him. Out of the bushes jumped the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat, and each one grabbed hold of and caught the bunny gentleman.

"I have you!" howled the Fox. "I have you!" howled the Wolf. "I have you!" meowed the Bob Cat.

HE FOOLED THEM AGAIN.

"So I see, gentlemen," spoke the bunny uncle, though the three Bad Chaps were far from being gentlemen animals. "You

Ganges

Ganges, Sept. 24.—The monthly meeting of the Guild of Sunshine was held Thursday afternoon, September 19, Mrs. G. J. Moore presiding. The treasurer presented a detailed account of the proceeds and expenses in connection of the concert and dance by the Dale Quartette of Vancouver, held under the auspices of the guild. The quartette will be asked to come again to the Island, November 9 being the date suggested.

The hospital representative stated the sunshine ward was in need of blankets, and Mrs. Cartwright was instructed to confer with the matron and report. The question of knitting for the usual Christmas hampers was discussed and Mrs. Holmes was authorized to purchase wool.

Mrs. Stuart Smith offered to give an afternoon bridge party to augment the fund. The offer was accepted, and the date fixed for October 18. Tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. S. Holmes and Mrs. Stuart Smith.
